MAYOR SAYS BOMBINGS MUST END

BULLETIN.

The first raid under Mayor Herron's edict that the rackets must be cleaned out was staged in the Strip this afternoon. Forty men were arrested in an alleged numbers headquarters at 1213 Penn avenue.

Mayor Herron today read the riot act to his city detectives.

Apparently stirred by the series of bombings in the East Liberty racket war, he called the sleuths to the City-County Building and delivered a sermon. Among other things he ordered:

"I want you detectives to leave this room today and bring in every racketeer, thief and disreputable character you run across."

SEEKS 'BIG SHOTS'

The Mayor told the sleuths to forget their own differences and to ignore any political "pull" the racket guys might have. He said:

"I don't care how big they are or how influential the man behind them is, throw them in jail . . . I would like to see some of the big shots brought in. They are going around with their chests out telling how big they are. Bring them in and I will arrange to give them all haircuts.

"We are going to forget about specialists. There is no need for such divisions as bomb and arson squads, automobile squads and other special details. There are now 45 detectives in the bureau. Beginning today, you 45 men will work on breaking up this bombing and cleaning up the city."

Besides the Mayor, Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., and Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide had a few words to say.

HINTS OF ELECTION

McQuaide reminded the sleuths that Herron was a candidate for re-election, Denny warned them they must all report for roll call each morning.

While the Mayor was "talkng turkey" the victim of the latest bombing—fourth in three weeks—lay in West Penn Hospital, his condition still serious. He is Ralph Scanga, 25, whose auto was bombed yesterday in Lorigan street, Bloomfield. Scanga operates a malt and bottle place in the Seventh Ward section of Penn avenue. This bombing was blamed on alcohol peddlers determined to keep out competition.

No arrests have been made for this blast, nor has anybody been brought in for the bombing Tuesday of the Ban-Box night club at Broad street and Highland avenue. This is the club operated by "Tom the Greek" Condas, who is regarded as a power in East Liberty politics. A few weeks ago his auto was bombed.

2 ATTORNEYS HIT IN CHILD WARD PROBE

Prosecution Looms for Lawyers Accused In 'Fix' Case

Prosecution of two attorneys as well as a foster father loomed today as District Attorney Andrew T. Park's office began investigating charges of cruelty reported in foster homes of Juvenile Court wards.

A case involving the mistreatment of three children in a Baldwin Township home was given to County Detectives Michael Ford and Lawrence Kline. It was termed one of the worst cases uncovered by investigators. The detectives were named by Park following a meeting yesterday with the Juvenile Court judges at which prosecutions were requested and the District Attorney's office asked to act.

ATTORNEYS ACCUSED

The attorneys, representing the foster father and the parents of the children, respectively, according to Leo A. Riordan, settled a felony case for cash after it had been started before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan on charges made by the mother.

Riordan reported conditions of the foster home to the detectives. Three children—two brothers, 6 and 13, and a sister, 15—were placed in the Baldwin home when their parents were forced to separate because of economic straits last fall. The older boy was subject to mistreatment and the sister to familiarities by the foster father, Riordan said. The children were forced to sell beer and wine at the home, he added. Probation office workers removed the children from the home last August because eight wards were being housed there.

MOTHER BEGINS SUIT

The children's mother learned of conditions under which the children had lived from the older boy last April. She reported the matter to Miss Grace L. Stoakes, chief probation officer, who had the mother see Judge Benjamin Lencher, according to Riordan. The latter ordered a physician to the home to examine all wards living there and advised the woman a private suit should be brought because of the nature of the charges, according to Riordan.

The information then was made by the mother before Flanigan, Riordan said. Attorneys representing both sides settled the case for several hundred dollars, Riordan asserted, but the records of the case in the alderman's office show the charges were not dropped since a felony must be sent to court.

Lady Midget Sits in Morgan's Lap

By EDWIN C. HILL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Carter Glass was right.

When the irascible Senator from Virginia s... ...d out the comment the other day that all this Senate inquiry into the House of Morgan lacked to make it a three-ring circus was peanuts and pink lemonade he said something. And today the hitherto missing Barnum and Bailey touch was supplied.

A press agent for a circus now playing on an open lot here walked in as cool as you please and plunked down upon the knees of J. Pierpont Morgan a midget from the circus side show.

Think of it! A circus freak dumped into the lap of J. P. Morgan, the Olympian Morgan, the overman of Wall street—Lorenzo the Magnificent! Poor man!

The fat press agent waddled into the room leading by the hand a tiny creature—a side show midget, statistically described as 32 inches tall and 31 years old.

The ballyhoo man pushed forward his midget and held out her tiny hand toward the imperial Morgan.

For the moment, of course, he did not realize that the thing was a "plant," a press agent "frameup," and being a gentleman in the presence of a woman, even a freak and a side show woman, the great man of Wall street smiled pleasantly, grasped the tiny fingers of the diminutive creature.

Instantly the cameras began to click and the electric flares to glare.

Tom Lamont gazed at the spectacle in horror. John W. Davis, Morgan attorney, looked as if the world was coming to an end. George Whitney, white with suppressed anger, half rose from his seat.

And then the fat press agent, red face exultant, suddenly lifted his midget and plopped her down upon Morgan's knee.

Suddenly J. P. seemed to comprehend what it was all about—that, in effect, he was being made to appear ridiculous for the benefit of a circus and a side show.

His pleasant face tightened. His eyes turned blank. He took his hand from the midget's shoulder as if she were burning his fingers. He looked helplessly around the room.

Finally the incredibly absurd episode ended and the press agent withdrew with his midget and Mr. Morgan sat with strained features, wondering, one must suppose, what kind of a lunatic asylum he had been drawn into.

BANKER MORGAN GETTING CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION AT SENATE'S MORGAN PROBE

ROBERTS, ATTERBURY, SCHAFFER, KEPHART ON NEW LIST

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Highlights of today's session of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee delving into the affairs of J. P. Morgan & Co.:

New list of favored clients were made public, headed by Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, former Senator George Wharton Pepper, W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justices John W. Kephart and William O. Schaffer.

Committee votes, 9 to 3, to make public articles of partnership showing how Morgan controlled firm, but not revealing names and interests involved.

Senate Counsel Pecora shows that Morgan firm passed up $122,508,000 profit by retaining its holdings in United Corporation.

Circus press agent causes uproar by setting midget woman in J. P. Morgan's lap in committee room while flashlights boomed.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP.)—Evidence was presented to Senate investigators today that J. P. Morgan & Co.'s utility stock holding concern—the United Corporation—used an accounting system under which some of its gains could be distributed as "a return of capital" and not as "a taxable dividend."

Ferdinand Pecora, Senate committee counsel, introduced a memorandum explaining the accounting system used by United Corporation on its option warrants.

Money received from exercise of the warrants was credited to "paid in surplus."

George Whitney, Morgan partner, was on the stand at the time—he earlier having acknowledged to Pecora that a potential profit of $122,508,000 was available to the Morgan House if in 1929 it had sold securities received by it in forming the United Corporation.

PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENT

This phase of the inquiry into operations of the international banking firm was reached after it had been decided on a 11 to 3 vote in closed session of the committee to make public the Morgan partnership agreement, save for namems of the present partners and the percentages of their interests.

Pecora introduced the potential profit figure in connection with the United Corporation deal. Whitney said it was correct.

He directed ridicule at the figure as a "surmise" of what might have been done but wasn't.

Meanwhile a new list of selected clients of J. P. Morgan & Co. was placed before the investigators and it included the names of Owen J. Roberts, now associate justice of the Supreme Court, and W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The transaction involved took place before Roberts was appointed to the court.

The latest list, the fourth presented, was of persons sold 82,000 units of stock in the United Corporation in January, 1929, at $75

MORE FAVORS TO COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Former President Calvin Coolidge was a special client of J. P. Morgan & Co. after leaving the White House, in addition to purchasing its Standard Brands, Inc., stock at cut-rate prices.

This information today was in the hands of the Senate committee investigating Morgan's banking practices. It threatened to furnish a fresh sensation when the details are made public by Ferdinand Pecora, special Senate counsel.

The startling inquiry was directed toward further revelation of secret Morgan clients and to probing the Morgan interests in the field of public utilities.

Scott had been spending his winters in the South and his summers in Pittsburgh, relatives said at his home here.

HOLDUP KILLING LAID TO MAUG

NEW YORK, June 1.—(INS.)—Two "lifers" who recently escaped from the Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh were sought today as the possible killers of Charles L. Mehling, 25, shot to death in his automobile near Coney Island Tuesday night.

Police were comparing the fingerprints found on the steering wheel of Mehling's car with those of John Maug and Edward J. Turpac, for whom a widespread search has been in progress since April 27, when they fled prison.

Mehling was shot twice through the head when he objected to advances made toward his girl companion, Marion O'Malley, by two bandits, who held up and rob... the couple in their parked ca...

U. S. Won't Use Armed Force for Peace—Davis

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

GENEVA, June 1.—The United States will refuse to join in any undertaking that requires the use of military force to preserve or restore peace.

This statement was made this afternoon by Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, in attempting to clarify the position of the United States with regard to a cumulative pact.

In the course of a lengthy speech before the general commission of the Disarmament Conference, Davis served blunt notice that the nations of Europe cannot expect the United States to take up arms in the event European peace is menaced by an aggressor. He said:

"The United ...ture, ...ready ...ing to c... ...ercising pressure for peace—but not up to the point of inflicting punishment."

Davis' declaration was made during discussion of an article in the British disarmament plan which provides for "sanctions"—a term generally implying military punitive measures unless otherwise specified—in the event any signatory nation resorts to aggression.

Princess Flies to Mate At Dawn, Proving Love

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP.)—"Yoo-hoo," said the princess as she bobbed up and down like a royal cork in the choppy waters of New York Harbor, on which she alighted in an amphibian plane.

"Yoo-hoo," said the prince, leaning far out over the rail on the promenade deck of the liner Rex, inbound from Europe.

And that was the greeting of Prince Girolamo Rospigliosi and his princess, the former Marion Snowden, of Minneapolis and New York, after a brief separation which rumor had whispered might be permanent.

At dawn the princess, whose recent arrival in this country without her husband gave rise to separation rumors, chartered a plane and set forth to meet the prince at Quarantine. The plane alig... near the liner and the pr... began waving. The prince saw her, and exclaimed:

"Ah! There's proof that she loves me."

They waved to each other. They shouted. They smiled and blew kisses.

Later, at the pier, the prince and the princess embraced.

This list dealt with clients who purchased through Drexel & Co., Morgan affiliate, and included Pennsylvania State Supreme Court Justices John W. Kephart and William O. Schaffer.

ESIGNATIONS ASKED

Gov. Gifford Pinchot has demanded their resignation for being on a previous list.

Former Senator Pepper (Rep.), Pennsylvania, also was on the st.

Yesterday a list was presented those who dealt directly hrough the Morgan firm.

Atterbury was listed today for 2,500 units and Roberts for 100.

The total units sold to those on the list was in an amount making total possible paper profits of nearly $2,000,000.

With Morgan closely following he testimony, the new list was placed in the record suddenly by Pecora just after a Morgan witness had given the crowd a thrill by testifying partners in the firm paid total income taxes for 1917 to 1929, inclusive, of $51,538,000.

WHITNEY ON STAND

With the Morgan partner, George Whitney, again on the stand as the first witness today, Pecora resumed the questioning by referring to a statement put into the record previously by Whitney showing "the value of certain holdings at acquisition and at the high market price of 1929."

Pecora said:

"By these figures, I understand that had your firm not transferred these utility securities to the United Corporation, but had held them until the summer highs of 1929, you could have sold them at prices yielding a profit of $57,387,479."

Whitney replied:

"That is correct. You had said we could have sold our United option warrants at a $68,000,000 profit.

"That was entirely a supposition. I thought that we would use some suppositions ourselves. Those figures are entirely suppositions just as your questions regarding possible profits were suppositions."

Pecora asked:

"You did sell 200,000 warrants for $8,400,000 and were left with 1,514,000 warrants, didn't you?"

"Yes. Our profit, supposing we had sold at the high, would be a simple matter of arithmetic."

HIGH FOR STOCK

In answer to a long series of questions, Whitney said the high for United common stock, "so far as our records go," was $66-⅝ in July, 1929. Pecora said:

"We have information that it sold at $75 on September 25, 1929."

He added that the option warrants sold over $40, then asked:

"Now, if you sold the 1,200,000 shares of common stock at $70, you would have received $84,000,000, wouldn't you?"

Whitney said:

"If you are going to surmise on what would have happened, yes. But that wouldn't have been our profit."

Pecora agreed:

"No; that's the gross."

He continued:

"Now, if you had sold the 1,714,200 in option warrants at $40—they sold higher—you would have received $68,568,000."

Whitney answered:

"Still surmising on what would have happened, yes."

Pecora asked:

"The total for the common stock and the option warrants would have been $152,568,000?"

Whitney said:

"You are not including the preferred stock in this guessing contest?"

Pecora responded:

"No, but I'm willing to."

Whitney was obviously irritated at the questioning, and some of his answers were a bit sharp.

PECORA WANTS FACTS

He asked Pecora:

"Now didn't we pay $25 a share for the common stock? Is that what you want me to say?"

Pecora answered:

"I want the facts."

Whitney said:

"We paid for it in blocks. I assume the figure you want for the common is $25. At that price 1,200,000 shares of common would have been $30,000,000."

Whitney explained to Senator Townsend (Rep.), of Delaware, how the Morgan firm had received blocks of United securities in return for certain utility securities it had turned over to United, plus $10,700,000.

Whitney said:

"We immediately resold 600,000 units (a unit consisting of one share of preference stock and one of common) at $75 each and at no profit to us.

"The figures are all a speculation. It is a case of if we had done none of the things we did do, this is what we might have done."

Pecora interposed:

"You said the profit on the securities turned over to the United would at top prices have been over $57,000,000? I want to show the other side of the picture—that if you had sold your United securities at prices not at the peak, you would have made a profit of $122,508,000."

Whitney asserted:

"That checks with my figures."

SALE OF OPTIONS

Fletcher asked when the 200,000 shares of United option warrants were sold.

Whitney said:

"From July to September, 1929."

Pecora asked:

"Didn't you sell 294,000 common shares?"

Whitney answered:

"From that day to this we sold 294,000 shares."

The witness thereupon told Fletcher the 1929 prices for option warrants ranged from a 47 high to a 40 low, while prices received for common stock that summer ranged from 73¾ to 67.

He outlined sales and purchases in United since at declining prices, the last sale of 1,700 in January, 1933, going at 9½.

Pecora asked:

"How many sets of minutes of the books of the United Corporation are kept?"

Whitney whispered to Leonard Keyes, Morgan office manager, and said:

"I'm told only one complete set."

Pecora asked:

"What was the market value of the securities turned over to the United on January 11, 1929?"

"$64,000,000."

"They were set up on the books of United at $50,000,000?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

Whitney told him that the "simple reason" was that the prices at which the securities were to be put on the books were determined before January 11 and that the market price "wasn't taken into account."

MORGAN'S TAX 22 MILLIONS

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(INS.)—Federal and state income taxes paid by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. as a firm totaled $22,344,270.84 for the period 1927-1929, inclusive.

This information was gleaned at today's session of the Senate Banking Committee inquiry in the Morgan Company's affairs with Leonhard A. Keyes, office manager, on the stand.

HUNT 'KIDNAPER' AS CHILD NAPS

Wesley Harrington, 2, rotund and smiling, prattles away in his home at Cecil, near Bridgeville, today, unaware that he threw the town into a five-hour state of turmoil late yesterday and was the object of a "kidnap" search that extended over several states.

Wesley, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Chester Harrington, was missed shortly after noon. Neighbors told of seeing an automobile halt near the home, and, after a short pause, suddenly speed away. Police were called and an alarm was flashed throughout Pennsylvania and adjoining states that the boy was "kidnaped."

About dusk last night Mrs. Harrington walked out on the back porch of her home.

Wesley crawled from beneath the porch and inquired:

"Whatsa a matter, mamma? Why you crying?"

JUDGE SCORES KIDNAP HOAX

A mother was scored today in Morals Court for "kidnaping" her 10-month-old son, and returning him later following a demand for $25,000 ransom.

Mrs. Lorena Palmer Grise Beatty, divorced wife of Thomas Grise, proprietor of the Grise Hotel, 6212 Penn avenue, her husband, Attorney W. F. Beatty; Mrs. Mathilda Parsons, housekeeper at the hotel, and Miss Matha Boltz, nurse, were discharged.

Mrs. Beatty said the child was taken last night to impress upon the nurse that others might have kidnaped the child, and that it should be given closer attention. Beatty said the phone call demanding ransom was for the same purpose.

The nurse and Mrs. Parsons told of discovering the absence of the child, but neither knew who took it. The child was returned a few minutes after the police were notified of the kidnaping. Before police arrived, Mrs. Parsons testified, a telephone demand for $25,000 was received. Later Mr. and Mrs. Beatty returned, Mrs. Beatty carrying the baby.

During the hearing a marriage license showing the former Mrs. Grise had been married to Beatty in New Cumberland, W. Va., last April 7, was shown to Magistrate Thomas D. Jones.

MACHINE RULES SWEATSHOP INQUIRY

Child Labor Ban Voted by Trade Group Here

HARRISBURG, June 1.—(AP.)—With its first public hearing set for June 6 in Philadelphia, the Legislature sweatshop investigating committee looks forward today to doing "something effective and valuable" regarding improvement in industrial conditions in the state.

At its first executive session, the committee yesterday authorized a "comprehensive and full" inquiry into the condition of child labor in all Pennsylvania industries.

This decision came after the committee had divided along factional lines in the selection of a chairman.

NAMES WIFE

Senator G. Mason Owlett, Republican organization leader of Tioga County, won the post by a margin of one vote over Judge Horace Stern, of Philadelphia, who was appointed to the committee by Gov. Pinchot. The Governor also named his wife, Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, and Clarence J. Moser, of Allentown.

Of the six legislators on the committee, three senators and three representatives, all but one are listed as members of the Republican organization, with which Pinchot has been engaged in numerous bitter controversies during his two terms in office.

National attention was focused upon the so-called sweatshop situation in Pennsylvania a few weeks ago by Mrs. Pinchot, who paraded with girl strikers protesting against their working conditions.

WORKERS STRIKE

Elimination of sweatshop practices and the employment of children in industry today had been demanded by the Allied Boards of Trade. The board adopted resolutions condemning the practice at a meeting last night. A committee also was appointed to renew a plea to City Council to review a contract between the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Duquesne Light Company, by which the former company is supplied electricity for trolley operation.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—(AP.)—Workers in many of Philadelphia's washable suits and knee pants shops today went on strike, demanding higher wages and shorter hours.

Union officials said the workers were averaging only $2 to $6 weekly for 60 hours of work.

STRIKE ENDING IN GREENSBURG

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 1.—Striking employes of the Greensburg Garment Company, were meeting this afternoon to hear reports of a conference held today with C. G. Heller, plant manager, looking to a settlement.

At the conference were Miss Emmeline Pitt, federal labor conciliator, and Joseph Washington, of the State Department of Labor. Miss Pitt said she expected a settlement by nightfall.

Following the conference it was announced the company had offered a flat 12½ per cent increase immediately, but refused the strikers' demand for a minimum wage of $1.25 daily. Keller, however, it was reported, agreed to permit the State Labor Department to fix the minimum wage scale.

The Butcher, the Baker, The Banker —And the Income Tax

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

The butcher and the baker
And the tallow candle maker
And the solemn undertaker
Feel the tax collector's axe;
And the toilers of the nation
At their daily occupation
Feel the deadly operation
Of the income tax.
But the banker, poor old fellow,
Growing round and fat and mellow
With his millions hard and yellow
Piled in ever growing stacks—
He is in an awful pickle,
For he finds that wealth is fickle
And he can't donate a nickel

ARRESTS LOOM IN PAY PROBE

County solicitors today were checking the report of M. C. Conick, auditor, to determine what criminal and civil action can be taken against present and former county employes for destroying payroll and time books for field offices of the road maintenance division.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern said:

"If there were any records available they would be just affidavits to send some of those guys to prison."

McGovern apparently meant former employes in the road maintenance division. Previous reports of auditors and investigators had named several former employes as being responsible for payroll padding and diversion of county supplies to private uses.

Conick declared that while Antonio Bonardi, former road employe, spent four months in Europe in 1931-32, he was carried on the payroll and someone collected and cashed his pay checks.

Conick reported that for approximately four months two residents of Braddock were carried on the road maintenance payroll although employed in the Edgar Thomson plant of the Carnegie Steel Company in Braddock.

The report said that in many cases injured county employes drew compensation while off work and also received their county salaries.

Payroll padding in the county parks was charged by the auditors, who declared they found employes listed as laborers drawing higher pay on credits of extra hours of work at the close of each pay period.

JELKE DIVORCE FIGHT MAY BE RENEWED

Judge in Denying Writ Finds Both Guilty Of 'Extreme Cruelty

NEWPORT, R. I., June 1.—(AP.)—The question whether F. Frazier Jelke and his young wife, balked in their drive to divorce each other, would seek decrees elsewhere, stirred interest in Newport today.

Judge Charles A. Walsh ruled late yesterday that both were guilty of "extreme cruelty" toward each other and that, therefore, under the laws of Rhode Island, neither might have a divorce.

The judge cleared the 27-year-old Mrs. Eugenia Woodward Jelke, former Alabama belle, of charges of unfaithfulness preferred by her middle-aged, millionaire husband during a two-weeks' court fight.

There was no doubt, the judge said, that Jelke was infatuated with his wife, but he said he was not convinced that "she reciprocated this affection." The court expressed the belief Mrs. Jelke married to obtain luxury, but he did not attach blame to her for this because, he said, at her age "such things are to be expected, and she liked excitement, social affairs and a good time."

While upholding Jelke's charge of cruel treatment, he cleared Mrs. Jelke of his charge of excessive drinking and said there was convincing evidence Jelke assaulted her seven times. The court declared Jelke had proved extreme cruelty insofar as it had been shown that his wife cursed him, bit him, tore his shirt, humiliated him before his friends and nagged him.

Sherwood Denies He Kept Ex-Mayor's Cash in Box

BULLETIN.

HOBOKEN, N. J., June 1.—(AP.)—Russell T. Sherwood said in an interview today that he disappeared 21 months ago during the investigation of the administration of Mayor James J. Walker because of "loyalty and respect" for Walker.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Russell T. Sherwood, financial confidante of former Mayor James J. Walker and the long-missing witness in the celebrated Seabury inquiry, has turned up "somewhere near New York" after a mysterious absence of 21 months.

He is dickering with the federal authorities regarding income tax liens of $49,000 imposed upon him after his flight in August, 1931, in the hope that he will be allowed to take up life where the exigencies of friendship and politics forced him to drop it.

STILL FUGITIVE

Still a fugitive from justice and facing arrest he is remaining out of the jurisdiction of New York state. He is believed to be in a town in New Jersey, within a short motor ride of New York city.

Sherwood is the accountant who had a joint safety deposit box with former Mayor Walker. It was the contention of Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the Hofstadter Legislative Committee, that Sherwood handled bank and brokerage accounts totaling close to $1,000,000.

Broke, out of a job and eager to take up life where he left off in 1931, Sherwood is still loyal to his friend, "Jimmy" Walker, who is now honeymooning in France with his bride, the former Betty Compton, musical comedy star.

William Duggan, collector of internal revenue for Manhattan, admitted today that Sherwood has been found. Duggan said he had seen Sherwood yesterday — and prior to that had talked to him a dozen times in the past several weeks. They were carrying on discussions relative to Sherwood's income tax.

DENIES SHARING CASH

First information that Sherwood had been found was obtained by the New York American. To that newspaper Sherwood denied he, personally, ever received a cent of the money alleged by the Seabury investigators to have been deposited in his accounts and withdrawn by him—amounts totaling nearly $1,000,000.

Seabury displayed interest when informed that Sherwood had been located. During the Hofstadter investigation Seabury presented evidence designed to show, among other things, that Sherwood withdrew some $260,000 in cash from a safekeeping account with Hornblower & Weeks just prior to Walker's departure for Europe in 1927. He charged that some—if not all—of that sum went to the former Mayor.

Sherwood told New York American reporters he never was Walker's fiscal agent; that he never received one penny of any sums withdrawn for Walker; that he never was paid any salary by Walker, but carried on for him activities previously handled by the ex-Mayor's brother, the late George Walker. Sherwood admitted he met Walker secretly after the Mayor resigned and just before Walker sailed on his present visit abroad.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today came to the defense of lighter-than-air ships as a vital phase in the general development of aviation in testimony before a joint Congressional committee investigating the Akron disaster.

Asked his opinion of the cause of the Akron disaster, the Colonel criticized the naval policy of restricting continuation of command. He said:

"My personal opinion is that it has been, and is, a mistake to discourage specialization in the service."

HUNT FUGITIVES OF 2 PRISONS IN SOUTHWEST

M'ALESTER, Okla., June 1.—(AP.)—Fugitives from two states' prisons left reckless trails across four southwestern states today.

Violence flared at scattered points along the route of flight chosen by the 11 desperadoes who fled in two groups from the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing Tuesday. Bloodhounds sniffed at the heels of two convicted killers who emulated the northern convicts and dashed away from the Oklahoma Penitentiary here late yesterday, holding for a time a guard hostage.

The Kansas convicts kidnaped Kirk Prather, whose term as warden ended last midnight; two guards and there women. The warden and the guards were freed near Welch, Okla., the women near Pleasanton, Kan.

SEIZE GUARD'S AUTO

Disarming Tom Baskin, guard who was escorting them from repair work at the prison women's ward, the two Oklahoma fugitives, Jim Stribling, an Indian, and H. D. Bradbury, sped away in Baskin's motor car after throwing the guard out. Later they abandoned it on a Rocky Mountin road near Haywood, 12 miles west of the prison. A dozen guards and a pack of bloodhounds beat the brush throughout the night.

A gunfight at Siloam Spring, Ark., between Chief of Police Bo La Follette and three auto thieves who abandoned a Kansas ca seemingly that taken by one gro of the Lansing fugitives, and t robbery of a motoring couple two prisoners near Seneca, M bore out officers' opinions that Kansas convicts were gaining t Ozark mountains and hills in t area where Oklahoma, Arkans and Missouri converge.

HILLS OFFER REFUGE

In this section are the Cookson hills, a refuge for the lawless since frontier days, and, in the belief of Warden Sam Brown, of the McAlester Prison, the goal of his two runaways.

Officers also suspected the Kansas convicts of killing Night Policeman Otto Durkee, who tried to prevent a tire shop robbery at Chetopa, Kan., early yesterday.

During the day there were reports that Wilbur Underhill, the "tristate terror" who led the Kansas break, was leading fleeing bands near Miami and in Osage County, Okla., to the west. Search, however, was fruitless.

THREATEN AUTOISTS

The two convicts who hitchhiked a ride with B. K. Blair and Miss Alice Braithwaite, of Joplin, Mo., threatening them and driving them two hours before releasing them, said they were Jim Clark and Clifford Dopson. One of them, Blair said, declared he was in the group which kidnaped the women in Kansas. He also said, according to Blair:

"I had to kill a bull."

The prisoners' conversation Blair declared, indicated they had separated from their three "pals" but a short time before.

PAIR CONFESSES RIDLEY THEFT

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP.)—George Goodman and Arthur J. Hoffman, accountants who confessed a part in the systematic theft of more than $200,000 from Edward A. Ridley, slain millionaire real estate operator, pleaded guilty today to grand larceny charges growing out of their transactions with Ridley.

The two men were named in three first degree grand larceny indictments on May 23, 13 days after Ridley and his secretary, Lee Weinstein, who also had a part in the thefts, according to the accountants, were found murdered in Ridley's musty and dim subcellar office.

HERRON'S TALK TO SLEUTHS ON RACKETS

The text of Mayor Herron's speech to his city detectives today, ordering the breaking up of racketeer activities, follows:

When Council was making up its last budget the Perkins Detective Agency and other agencies asked to take over the Detective Bureau. We thought this would be a bad example and decided to keep the bureau in the Police Department.

Lately we have had a vivid example of the work of gangsters and racketeers. They have issued their challenge. Now you men must either accept this challenge or break it up. The Police Department gives no quarter, neither will it ask any quarter.

I don't want to be Mayor of this city if I have to accept the friendship of gangsters. The public is frightened because it knows we are not giving the protection which it believes is coming to it. We know the gangster and racketeer work only for themselves and are no good to anyone. Recently cabarets, business places and automobiles have been bombed. We will close every cabaret in the city if this thing continues.

DENIES VICE CONTROL

There is no reason why we and you men should surrender to racketeers and gangsters. Recently the newspapers have stated that certain gangsters and racketeers are attempting to take over the city. This is not true. Somebody is disappointed and has opened up a warfare of bombing. This is a tough time we are living in. We are all on the spot. There are thousands of men out of work, and it is up to you men to begin immediately and break up this lawlessness.

There is no difference in a racketeer or a bomber. A thief is a thief, a thug a thug. Nobody is going to run this city other than the Mayor, Council and the Police Department. Here is a fine opportunity for you men to produce. I want you to leave this room today and bring in every racketeer and thief you run across.

I don't care how big they are or how big or influential the men behind them is, I want every one of you detectives to throw them in jail. That is the place for them. I belong to a labor union and I know that our worst enemy is the man who resorts to the destruction of property. I have just as much at stake as you or anyone else has.

'NO SURRENDER'

"Pittsburgh will not surrender to the forces of evil. I want you men to forget your differences and co-operate in every way in bringing those responsible for the present crime condition.

"I have not lost faith in any of you. You don't need to be worried about your jobs just as long as you do your duty. What you need to worry about is your life, for a gangster and racketeer will put you detectives on the spot and knock you off just as quickly as they would an innocent person.

The people of Pittsburgh are worried and alarmed. It is up to you to bring law and order out of chaos. Speaking again of racketeers, I would like to see some of the big shots brought in. They are going around with their chests out telling how big they are. Bring them in and I will arrange to give them all haircuts.

We are going to forget about specialists. There is no need for such divisions as bomb and arson squads, automobile squads and other special details. There are now 45 detectives in the bureau. Beginning today, you 45 men will work on breaking up this bombing and cleaning up the city."

SOCIALITE HERE DENIES TROTH

RENO, Nev., June 1.—(INS.)—Mrs. Miriam V. Hostetter Young, Pittsburgh social leader here to divorce Charles Fuller Young, of New York City, has denied through her attorney, George Springmeyer, that she will marry Eugene A. Bowen, New York broker, after her decree is granted.

Bowen announced last week that Mrs. Young would become his bride. The attorney said:

"It's absurd for the man in any case to announce a marriage. Mr. Bowen has been very persistent in his attentions to Mrs. Young, much to her discomfort. I am authorized to say that there won't be a marriage."

Mrs. Young's divorce suit will be filed June 12. She will charge cruelty. She is the daughter of Mrs. Herbert Hostetter, of Pasadena.

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 1.—During the investigation that revealed two ex-clergymen were the chief preachers of nudism in this country, and that they were converting a sharply increased number of Americans to the cult practices, the following question demanded answer:

"What are the observable social results of the free mingling of naked men, women and children at nudist camps and gymnasiums?"

This question could by answered only by an impartial observer of real nudists in their native habits—that is, undressed in gymnasiums or in camp sites in the country.

Despite the fact that sheriffs, city police and newspaper protographers have considered nudists as their natural quarry ever since the practice was introduced here three years ago, this writer managed to spend several days and evenings with practicing nudists at secluded camps and locked gymnasiums in this city and vicinity.

Care was taken to prevent any of the nudists from knowing they were under observation, so they would not be "on their good behavior."

MORGAN-AIDED OFFICIALS ALL 'STAND PAT'

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP.)—Despite wide unfavorable reaction to disclosure of official names among those given a chance for quick profits by J. P. Morgan & Co., the beneficiaries so far have uniformly insisted there was no impropriety in their actions.

Demands for resignations have fallen on deaf ears.

William Woodin, special target because of his position as Treasury head, has said merely that he is not now resigning, but is ready to if his presence in the cabinet becomes an obstacle to return of prosperity.

JUDGES WON'T QUIT

Two Pennsylvania judges whose resignations were demanded by Gov. Pinchot, scoffed at the idea. Both John W. Kephart and William I. Schaffer, denied Pinchot's charge they had "utterly disqualified themselves" for further service on the state's highest bench, and said they lost on their stock purchases.

Edgar Rickard—mining engineer, former director of the American Relief Administration and often described as financial agent for former President Hoover—issued a statement showing more concern for Mr. Hoover's name than his own status. Dragging in Mr. Hoover's name in Senate committee testimony, he said, was "outrageous."

Senator Kean, New Jersey Republican, volunteered that his firm was on a Morgan list and said he had "taken an interest in Morgan offerings" ever since he was a young man.

BOSTON ATTACK

In Boston yesterday former Gov. Alvin T. Fuller, attacked Gaspar G. Bacon, Morgan customer, as an "ultra conservative" who stood for "special privileges." Bacon replied it was his family's established custom to seek investment advice from J. P. Morgan & Co.

Norman Davis, American ambassador-at-large to Economic and Arms conferences at London and Geneva, issued a statement early in the hearings explaining occupation with public service was the reason he had not paid off a loan received from the Morgan company.

Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, of California, ex-Treasury Secretary, denied being a preferred client of J. P. Morgan & Co., said he bought stock through friendship with Russell Leffingwell, Morgan partner, lost $2,565 and had not dealt with the firm since.

HIGH FINANCE METHODS PUZZLE MORGAN PROBERS

Things All Depend On Point of View, It Seems

By EDWIN C. HILL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Cloudy and devious are the ways of high finance and high financiers. The thing that may seem to one set of minds a worthy and benevolent action may appear to another set of minds as a raw deal.

Take, for example, the gigantic purchase of Mohawk and Hudson Power securities by J. P. Morgan & Co. from the General Electric Company and the General Electric Security Company, a most interesting and entertaining transaction arranged by the Morgan partners with Messrs. Owen D. Young and Gerard S[illegible].

It highly benefitted the stockholders of the Morgan-owned United Corporation, but it cost the stockholders and employes of the General Electric Company a little matter of $12,000,000. It all depends on the point of view.

George Whitney, handsome, intelligent, keen-witted and extraordinarily capable spokesman and defender of the House of Morgan, speaks of the transaction as an instance of the unselfishness and square dealing of his house.

Ferdinand Pecora, who has burrs under his tongue, and who cares not a tinker's damn for all the subtleties of language, says outright that it was a raw deal.

And here's the story:

In June, 1928, the General Electric Company, of which Owen D. Young, who, for some reason was not invited to become Secretary of State of these United States, was chairman of the board, and Gerard Swope was president, made an oral offer to J. P. Morgan to sell to the House of Morgan its entire holdings and the entire holdings of the General Electric Securities Company in Mohawk and Hudson power.

OFFER TO MORGAN

The securities of the great New York upstate power concern were offered to Morgan at $40 a share for the common stock, approximately the market price at that time.

There was a batch of 350,957 shares of the common, another batch of 62,360 of the second preferred, and still another bundle of 124,740 option warrants. J. P. Morgan deferred action on the offer, which was made in June, 1928. (The date is important. Keep it in mind).

In the fall of the same year, 1928, J. P. Morgan & Co. endeavored to obtain a lower price from the General Electric Company and the General Electric Securities Company, but Owen D. Young stood pat and refused to lower the price a cent.

On December 5, 1928, six months after the original offer was made orally, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted the offer and the price was settled upon as $40 a share for the 350,957 shares of common stock, $107 a share for the 62,360 shares of second preferred, and $20 a unit for the 124,740 option warrants.

For the whole bundle of securities which belonged to the stockholders and employes of the General Electric Company and the General Electric Securities Company, J. P. Morgan & Co. paid a little more than $23,000,000—to be exact, $23,634,120.

SWOPE MEMORANDUM

At the time the deal was agreed on, December 5, 1928, President Gerard Swope wrote a memorandum to J. P. Morgan & Co., which read substantially as follows:

"The General Electric Company agrees to sell to J. P. Morgan & Co. its holdings and the holdings of the General Electric Securities Company in the Mohawk and Hudson Power Corporation on the following terms:

"First, $40 a share for the common stock with interest at 5 per cent from June 5, 1928;

"Second, $107 a share for the second preferred stock, and,

"Third, $20 a unit for the option warrants.

"Payment to be made any time between January 5 and January 10, 1929.

"In making the purchases described, J. P. Morgan & Co. recognizes the importance of preserving the good will of the Bradys and the upstate interests in the general power situation, and J. P. Morgan & Co. agree to handle the holdings of Mohawk and Hudson shares in harmony with the interests described, having no intention of divesting themselves of the stock to any foreign interests.

"J. P. Morgan & Co. also recognizes the services that have been rendered to the Mohawk and Hudson Power Corporation by Charles Brewer, as chairman of the board, and are prepared to continue the relations of General Electric with him."

So the deal was signed, sealed and delivered, J. P. Morgan paying a little more than $23,000,000 for the Mohawk and Hudson stock and warrant units and turning them over to its creation, the United Corporation, at virtually the same figures.

SHARE VALUE RISES

But it so happened that only five days before the deal was closed—that is, on December 10, 1928, the value of the shares had gone up on the market from the $23,634,120 acceptable to Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope, to the sum of $26,683,975, an increase of almost $3,000,000.

The evidence brought out today showed that the heads of the General Electric took no cognizance of that fact, but permitted the House of Morgan to take the shares at the old price offered back in June.

But that's not all.

On January 10, 1929, just a month after the deal was closed, the value of the Mohaw and Hudson shares bought by Morgan from General Electric had gone up to $35,533,260, or almost $12,000,000 more than Morgan had paid for them in the bargain deal made with Young and Swope.

In the testimony, spokesmen for the Morgan firm, notably the clever George Whitney, has defended the transaction as an instance of the generosity of his firm, and as an instance of how J. P. Morgan & Co. dealt on the most liberal and self-sacrificing terms with the corporations it was financing and launching.

In the testimony so far adduced Whitney and others have sought to make it appear that the Mohawk and Hudson deal was a striking instance of Morgan benevolence, but that isn't the way Pecora looks at it at all.

MITCHELL TOLD OF 'G[illegible]

NEW YORK, June 1.—Charles E. Mitchell, form[illegible] of the National City Ba[illegible] its affiliate, the Nation[illegible] Company, today was pictu[illegible] his income tax evasion trial as the man who grew and farmed out the $2,000,000 "management fund" of the affiliate company.

The government introduced evidence through a witness, Frank J. Maguire, assistant secretary and treasurer of the National City Bank, in an attempt to show that Mitchell, as president and later as chairman, cut a melon of $666,666 for himself and lesser slices for other officers.

Latest Morgan List Of Special Customers

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP.)—Here is the latest special list of customers introduced at today's investigation into J. P. Morgan & Co., it dealing with those allowed to buy units of United Corporation stock through Drexel & Co.—Morgan affiliate—in 1929, at $75 a unit although the units soon commanded a $99 price on the public market:

Hiester S. Albright, 100; Edgar Ellegaert, 100; J. Howard Arthur, 25; Thomas G. Ashton, 300; W. W. Atterbury, 2,500.

DEMAND GROWS FOR RECALL OF AMBASSADOR

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Recall of Robert W. Bingham, ambassador to England, is demanded by Congressional leaders for his assertion the United States is willing to abandon the cherished principles of the nation's founders.

Bingham told the Pilgrims Society in London Tuesday night America's willingness to join a consultative agreement, outlined by Norman H. Davis, American representative at Geneva, marked the departure from principles which have kept the nation free from European political entanglements.

Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, declared President Roosevelt should "bring back this man at once before we are embroiled in all the wars of the world." He added:

"Who is Bingham to abandon the principles of political isolation wisely enunciated by George Washington?"

WALES PRESENT

At the same time, acting Secretary of State William Phillips admitted America's willingness to forego certain neutrality rights, if it agreed in determining an aggressor under the consultative plan, would be a departure from American historical policy. He insisted, however, the United States reserved independence of decision and action in deciding whether to abandon neutral rights during a conflict.

Bingham's address, to which the Prince of Wales was an attentive listener, amazed Congress, and Senators and Representatives, irrespective of party, assailed his presumptive promises in the name of the American people.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, ex-chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said:

"The policy and principles of the founders will be the living, accepted and cherished principles of the American people long after those who are talking about abandoning them are forgotten utterly."

REED INDIGNANT

Congressional indignation over Bingham's address was emphasized in these comments:

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, member of the Foreign Relations Committee and a delegate to the London Naval Conference, said:

"If Ambassador Bingham and Norman Davis are right, then George Washington and all other Presidents and the Congress have been wrong for 150 years.

"I hope someone will warn the British people that we are not all such suckers as Ambassador Bingham."

Senator Carey (Rep.), of Wyoming, said:

"Ambassador Bingham evidently was overcome by the society he is associating with now. Associating with the Prince of Wales, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon, War Secretary Lord Hailsham and others in British society, has interfered with his judgment, if he has any."

CAN'T END ISOLATION

Senator Bone (Dem.), of Washington, said:

"Ambassador Bingham cannot end American isolation for me or for the people of the United States by making a speech before the Pilgrim Society in London. This country will be adhering to the traditional policy of neutrality long after Ambassador Bingham has been returned to private life.

"It is too bad, however, that an American ambassador should seek to curry favor with his new associates by announcing a new policy on the part of his government which he believes will be pleasing to them."

Senator Copeland (Dem.), of New York, said:

"It is regrettable that Ambassador Bingham, like so many orators, should be carried away by the occasion and yield to the temptation to make extravagant statements."

FEARS ENTANGLEMENTS

Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said:

"Will wonders never cease? Can it be true that Norman H. Davis and Ambassador Bingham speak for President Roosevelt in repudiating the very foundation of our foreign policy and actually want to involve us in European entanglements and the League of Nations?"

Envoy Bingham Has Secret Passion For Britain, Says Glasgow Paper

Quoted as Saying He's 'American by Adoption Only'

The following article was printed in the Glasgow Bulletin, of Glasgow, Scotland, shortly after the arrival of Ambassador Bingham in England.

By ALLAN J. EIDINOW

Scotland will have a very interesting visitor in August if, as he has virtually promised, the new American ambassador travels north to the land from which his forebears originally came.

Robert Worth Bingham, now representative of the United States at the Court of St. James, although an American, has had a secret passion for Great Britain since he was born. He has openly boasted of his British ancestry rather more than some of his fellow-countrymen thought wise. At a dinner given by the Pilgrim Fathers Association, he shocked his hearers by saying that he was an American by adoption only.

Mr. Bingham is one of the most picturesque men in America. For a number of years he has been the Governor of Louisville, Ky., a state noted for breeding horses for racing, bootleg liquor and feuds. He has it to its credit that during the period of his governorship there have been a cessation of these activities. Gov. Bingham, when it was reported to him that these mountain men were killing each other, made the remark that the sooner they made a good job of it the better, as there would be no more feuds.

(Editor's note — Ambassador Bingham was mayor of Louisville in 1907. He was never "governor" of Louisville or of Kentucky.)

He is of Scottish descent, and still retains many of the traditions. When a party of friends came to him for letters of introduction, as they were making a trip to England, he gave them what they desired on one condition—that they would not sail till the latter part of spring. When they asked the Governor the specific reason for this, and whether he was thinking of the fogs, he cried:

"Fogs! Ah want you to see the sight of your life—them soldier boys trooping the colour."

He is gentle, kindly-eyed, and always has a merry twinkle for his friends. He never gets angry, and does not use swear words in the manner of the southern gentleman. He was a journalist, and before he became Governor, was editor and part owner of the Louisville Courier. He is a great worker, and prepares every detail of his work himself. It was his early ambition to become a musician, and he still looks forward to the day when he will be able to devote all his time to the 'cello and organ.

He smokes intermittently. It is more a habit than a desire. He will place a cigar in his mouth and chew the end off, without lighting it. With regard to drinks, he dislikes hard liquor, and never employs anyone known to be addicted to drink. He has a peculiar habit of rubbing the thumb nail of his left hand along his front teeth when he is thinking hard.

Bridge he won't learn, but he will take a hand at poker if he feels like losing money. He has played squash, raquets and polo and is acknowledged to have the best string of polo ponies in the state of Kentucky. Mr. Bingham enjoys watching a game of baseball, but is more perfectly at home on a cricket field behind stumps, with pads and gloves on.

When he was a journalist, his idea of a swell time was to sit in the corner of a restaurant with a bunch of fellows and see who could tell the biggest lies. He now loves going to the theater. He detests gossip, and he has a horror of the word "but." In this connection the following story is told of him:

A Kentucky colonel, known for his gossiping, had come to see him in connection with an appointment. Mr. Bingham pointed out to him that the job had been practically filled, and mentioned the name of the man about to fill the post. The colonel started to praise him. When he had come to the end of his dissertation, the shrewd Mr. Bingham looked up and said, "'But' what?"

He is very keen on competitions, and is an expert at the jigsaw puzzle, which is now a great craze in the United States.

Mr. Bingham has made many enemies in America by his outspokenness. During the war he did not hesitate to voice his sentiments as to his being pro-British. When finally the country entered on the side of the Allies, his remark is still remembered today:

"We have gone into it, but we are three years late."

His appointment as ambassador should be welcomed on this side of the water, as he is a man of understanding, and he brings with him the spirit of his President, Mr. Franklin Roosevelt. By making Mr. Bingham the ambassador, Roosevelt is fulfilling another portion of his inauguration speech—that America could no longer afford to be an isolated country, and that they wished to hold out the hand and become a good neighbor.

It should be remembered that Mr. Roosevelt was an ardent worker in the cause of the League of Nations, and Mr. Bingham shares his views on this matter.

The new ambassador is not a stranger to these shores, as he had spent several of his holidays in Britain, and has taken great pride in revisiting the scene of his parents' youth. His many friends here will welcome him to a position he has long deserved.

Bowers Received By Alcala Zamora

MADRID, June 1.—(AP.)—Claude G. Bowers, the new American ambassador, presented his credentials to President Niceto Alcala Zamora today in a colorful ceremony. He was escorted to the palace by the presidential guard. Mr. Bowers conveyed a message of good will from President Roosevelt. Thanking the ambassador, President Alcala Zamora said:

"Spanish-American relations at present are closer than ever."

CUBA TO DEPORT 'BUTCHER'

HAVANA, June 1.—(AP.)—Maj. Arsenio Ortiz, a Cuban army officer accused of killing three watchmen at a sugar mill in Jatibonico Province two weeks ago, will leave for Germany June 14, according to authoritative sources.

The officer today remained under the orders of the general staff because an investigator's report to the general staff fixed responsibility for the slayings on him, although he has not been removed from the army or placed under arrest.

The government plans to send him to Germany, where his married daughter lives, rather than try him, it was learned. He is guarded at his home against possible attack.

During the six months in 1931 when Maj. Ortiz was military supervisor of Oriente Province, more than 40 mysterious assassinations occurred, civil courts implicating him in at least five.

REVOLT ON VET SLASH RAGES

Staunch Democratic regulars joined with progressives and old-guard Republicans to demand drastic changes in the economy act provisions affecting war veterans.

The revolt gained such momentum that Postmaster General Farley and other powerful figures in the executive department, were called in hurriedly to help wield the party whip.

The leaders were doubtful whether they could prevent adoption of amendments severely limiting executive power to slash veterans' expenditures. These amendments were offered to the 1934 independent offices appropriation bill, carrying a total for veterans' relief $493,000,000 below the total for the current fiscal year.

UNCANNY
SHIFTS FOR ITSELF

● Thousands have driven and marvelled at the new Reo-Royales and Reo Flying Clouds equipped with the new REO SELF-SHIFTER—greatest automotive invention since the self-starter. It is uncanny in action. Gear changes are made silently—surely—automatically—without thought or attention from the driver. It is utterly foolproof, amazingly simple. A boon to old-timers—a miracle to novices. No car is a modern car without it. Drive a new Reo today.

COMMONS FAILS TO CLEAR DEBT MYSTERY

LONDON, June 1.—(AP.)—The House of Commons failed again today to pry from Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain a statement of the British policy in regard to the $75,850,000 war debt installment due the United States June 15.

Frederick S. Cocks, a Labor member, asked whether the government had reached any decision regarding payment of the installment, and Mr. Chamberlain replied:

"It would not be desirable for me to make any statement in regard to this matter at present."

A number of members of the House asked:

"Why?"

Mr. Cocks insisted on some sort of declaration, asking:

"Will the Chancellor take into consideration that many American authorities would like to see us cut the Gordian knot in this matter by repudiating our liabilities?"

Mr. Chamberlain replied:

"All relevant circumstances will be taken into consideration."

Further questions failed to elicit even a hint regarding the war debt policy. This strengthened parliamentary opinion that the government is clinging to the hope that some policy of debt relief or suspension will be announced from Washington before the world economic conference convenes June 12.

Press dispatches from Washington give little basis of this hope being realized, but it was learned authoritatively that cabinet ministers here continue to expect a new debt pronouncement from the White House.

FRENCH FINALLY O. K. BUDGET

PARIS, June 1.—(AP.)—After seven months of wrangling, the French Parliament finally approved today the 1933 budget carrying a deficit of $145,000,000.

That Premier Edouard Daladier gathered the fiscal storm with a comfortable majority was interpreted as strengthening his hand [illegible] world economic conferences which the cabinet will soon determine its policy.

Expenditures of 49,270,710,242 francs were anticipated in the budget. Of this 3,196,000,000 francs will be for the compulsory amortization of the national debt. The estimated revenue was set at 45,851,502 francs. (The franc currently is quoted at about 4½ cents.)

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Inferiority Complex Leads To Unpopularity

He's a little guy,

That doesn't seem very serious, does it? Nor need it be, But the Boy Friend has chosen to make a tragedy of it,

So he spends his time crabbing and moaning over his handicap—

Until he has made a regular racket of his "inferiority complex."

Ever know anyone like that? If so, you'll sympathize with Betty, who wants to know what to do about it.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I am coming to you with a problem that may look silly; but, oh, how much pain and aggravation it has caused me! Please help me!

My boy friend is about one inch shorter than I am, and he can't seem to get over its effects. We love each other, and are planning to be married at the end of June. He knows, because my girl friends have told him, that until I met him I had never gone out with anyone shorter than myself. I am 5 feet 8 inches, and I have always disliked short men.

TOPIC OF CONVERSATION

Now, when we are out in public, he always points the tall and handsome men out to me and keeps saying, "If I were only tall!" It's getting so I dread to introduce him to any of my friends who are tall. He knows some of my former boy friends, and he is always remarking how "nice and tall" they are. What am I to say to him?

At first I ignored his remarks, but I couldn't do it forever, so I told him, "You can't measure virtue by inches." But that didn't satisfy him. I don't know why he keeps harping on this. He knows I love him. He isn't so rich that I'm going with him for his money. He hasn't even got a car.

When I think that things will be like that after we are married, I actually get frightened and think of breaking our engagement. Not because he is short, but because he harps on it so.

AFRAID OF HURTING HIM

You'll say, "Why don't you tell him, in so many words, to stop talking about height?" Well, I am afraid he will think I don't want to be reminded of it because it hurts me that he isn't tall.

He idolizes me, and because he loves me, he imagines I'm a queen or something, who could have had any tall, wealthy and handsome man I wanted. He doesn't seem to realize that I chose him because there was something about him that seemed just right. I love him, and would do anything to make him forget this inferiority complex he has acquired. But if he is going to keep it, I'm afraid I can't stand it.

Maybe I could help him, if I weren't afraid of hurting his feelings. I noticed recently that there are men's shoes with higher than the average heels. He could get a pair of these, and put cushion heels inside his shoes. I think that would make him look a couple of inches taller. But I hate to suggest it. He'll think I'm objecting to his height.

So, will you please print this? He reads your column and I'm sure he will take your advice. He won't believe me. Please help me. BETTY.

Help you? You don't need help, youngster. It's the boy friend who requires attention and, since he reads this column, he's going to get it plenty. So listen, lad—this is for you.

Hard to be an out-size? Sure it is. And I'm the one who knows it—being a couple inches over-height myself. You feel funny because you're too little. At your age I felt funny because I was too big. And I acted funnier than I felt!

What did I do? Exactly what you are doing. I made a martyr of myself—a public nuisance—an all-around general pest.

A PET PEEVE

And why did I do it?

I did it because I wanted attention.

I did it because my vanity was hurt, and I tried to compensate for that hurt by "sticking up" everyone for sympathy.

No matter what the occasion, sooner or later I managed to lead the conversation around to my own pet peeve. Then, of course, people just had to tell me what a wonderful girl I was, even if I was so tall. Whereupon, my conceit was temporarily satisfied.

So that's all it was—common, cussed conceit, craving an audience.

And now you're pulling the same stuff. Well, take a tip from an older racketeer, boy—it won't buy you anything but unpopularity.

If you keep that up, you'll find yourself some day on the other side of the door, with no one to listen to your yelps but the big, wide open spaces.

So—quit it, youngster! Face this notion of yours as you would any other malicious habit, and cut it out. Lack of height is no handicap unless you make it so. You are as tall as your own spirit.

I'M GOIN' BACK TO MY OLD MOTTO, "SAVE NOTHING," FAY KING

By FAY KING

A visit to one of my most systematic friends inspired me to get files and index cards.

At first, my main worry was what to put into all these accordian envelopes and boxes full of colored cards. But before long, filing things by date, number, and alphabetically became a kind of mania with me.

The envelopes and boxes began to bulge to bursting. It was then I discovered that filing and finding are different matters where I am concerned. By the time I'd find what I had filed I had forgotten why I wanted it.

I'm back to my own time saving system. I save nothing, so never waste time looking for anything.

It's not so good, but it's great for me!

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Nick Drags Along Figure of Unconscious Man

Marion's terrified query concerning Nick's plans found an anguished echo in my own soul. But I could not let her guess my fear. She had been through so awful an experience that she must be spared anything further as long as it lay in my power to shield her.

"I think he'll have to let us go, sweetheart," I told her. "Don't turn your head to look, but do you hear that zooming above us?"

"Oh! that's what I've been hearing!" she exclaimed joyously. "My head was wrapped up so tightly, I thought it was a buzzing in my brain. Yes, of course, I hear it now. Is it—oh! yes you told me Uncle Dicky found the place where they'd hidden us, and that Carolyn is safe. Is—is he up there?"

"Yes, he and Major Grantland. I think they intend to land very shortly, as soon as the moon gets out from behind those clouds. Oh! they've dropped a flare! Perhaps they're coming down right away. No!" as she struggled to sit up. "Lie still, dearest. I'll tell you everything. You've been through too much to exert yourself."

"Im all right," she said, bravely, through the swollen lips that made articulation difficult. "But, I'll be good," she added with childish sweetness. "Oh! what's that?"

"That" was a revolver shot, and I realized that since the swathings had been removed from her head and body, there had been no sound of the revolver duel which Tony and the men from Jerry's were waging.

MEN RETURN

She twisted herself upward frantically.

"Don't stir!" I whispered. "I must go around the other side of these trees, and see who is coming."

"All right," she whispered back, gallantly smothering the terror that I knew must be riding her, and I went swiftly around to the other side of the big tree and bushes in the shelter of which Nick had placed us.

The darkness was lightening a bit now, as the dark clouds over the moon gave way to lighter ones, and pressed back against the shelter of the trees, I could see the advancing men before they could possibly catch a glimpse of me. I slipped my little pistol back into its hiding place as Nick suddenly loomed up close to me, with Ronald, stumbling along beside him, only able to stand and walk, it was patent, because of Nick's supporting arm.

From Nick's other hand depended a rope, and to my horror, I saw that it was attached to the figure of a man, apparently unconscious, but moaning, whom Nick was dragging after him as unconcernedly as if the man were a child's sled.

From some reserve of will power I pumped up strength to rush forward and put my hand upon Ronald's arm. "Are you all right, dear boy?" I whispered.

"Yes. Where's Marion?" Ronald asked breathlessly, but Nick broke in before I could answer.

NICK TAKES COMMAND

"Who gave you any license to come this side of those trees?" he demanded. "Get back there before I push your face around to the back of your head."

There was real brutality infusing the coarse jocosity of his speech, and, though I longed to strike the sneering smile from his lips, I obeyed him without a word. But I heard a horrified exclamation from Ronald and an answering snarl from Nick.

"None of your lip, my lad," he said. "I'm running this show now, and you take your orders from me. Run along and tell the girl friend how you knocked hell out of that bird that was carrying her off. I'll look after —what d'ye call her, Auntie Madge? She's got a new nephew from now on, and do I know how to treat aunts?"

His low laugh was more terrifying than his brutal words had been, but I do not think Ronald heard either. He had flung himself free of Nick's supporting arm and was staggering along behind me. The next instant he dropped to his knees beside Marion, who struggled to a sitting posture as she saw him.

His voice died away, and he slumped to the ground beside her. She gave a choked little scream of terror.

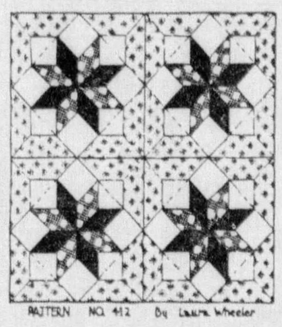
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Brunswick Star

Of all the many stars used in quilt patterns the eight-pointed one has been the favorite. In many patterns the small eight-pointed star has diamond patches added to it till a large star results. The Brunswick Star varies in this, for it is enlarged by means of squares making a very distinctive star pattern that lends itself well to four materials.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Hints for the Household

In many homes table mats and runners are being used in place of large tablecloths. Some are gayly colored prints, some plain colors. Mats made of gingham with bright checks give an air of informality to the table. If the mats are homemade, select colors and materials which will stand many washings. The mats may be fringed or hemmed,

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When You Sneeze

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What should you say when you sneeze in front of guests you are entertaining?

2—What should you say if you yawn while entertaining? If your guests do not see you, should you say anything?

A READER.

1—When you feel a sneeze coming on, quickly whisk out your handkerchief and put it over your mouth. You needn't say anything.

2—If your guests don't see you yawn, you should say nothing—but your prayers of gratitude afterward, that they did not witness such an unforgivable social crime. And if they do see you yawn, all you could say, I suppose, is, "I'm sorry." But I hope that this question is only a hypothetical one, and that you will never need the advice!

Two Questions of Bidding

hile Contract Bridge bidding has become largely standardized, still, out of the countless card combinations which may be dealt, there remain many hands which present knotty problems. My mail contains many queries as to the proper method of handling certain distributions. For instance, a correspondent in Louisville submits this question:

"What is the proper bidding of the hand below?"

South, dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

♠ A K 8 6 4 2
♡ K J 5
◇ K 6 4

North / West / East / South

♠ Q J 7 5
♡ A Q 6
◇ Q
♣ A J 10 5 3

South	North
1 ♣	1 ♠
Pass

1—The Immediate Jump to game, after having opened the bidding, is a mild Slam try. It guarantees, of course, the safety of the contract for game and suggests strongly the possibility of an even better result.

2—North's Takeout of the Opening bid might have been on little more than 1 honor-trick. As a matter of fact, North holds 3½ honor-tricks and a six-card trump suit. The only reason a Forcing Takeout is not made on the first round of bidding is that the hand contains a singleton in partner's bid suit, which suggests caution.

The second question in bidding was submitted to me by Mr. F. G. Blasdel, of Washington, D. C. It involved the bidding of the following hands, held recently by Mr. Blasdel and his partner, Capt. J. S. McCain, of the United States Marines:

South, Dealer.

♠ A Q 3
♡ A Q 3
◇ K J 10
♣ K J 10 4

North / West / East / South

♠ K J 8 6 4 2
◇ A 9 8 7 3
♣ Q

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
2 ♠ (1)	Pass	4 N T (2)	Pass
5 ◇ (3)	Pass	6 ◇ (4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

"1—My partner says I should have bid one spade. I claim that a Jump bid is best because I have a sure game [illegible] get my partner's best suit [illegible] spades or diamonds and if I [illegible] Rebid I will show him [illegible] have a very freak hand [illegible] diamonds.

The [illegible] ject.

a revo[illegible] partner says I should have rebid spades. I claim that I haven't a spade Rebid; that five diamonds shows another biddable suit, a very freak hand and denies holding two Aces.

"4—I claim this bid should have been six spades."

South's correct response to North's Opening bid of one club was one spade and not two spades. Hence the Captain was right. North's bid of four no-trump should have been delayed until a suit had been agreed upon, but in view of South's Forcing Takeout he is not to be greatly criticized for the immediate Slam try. When South bid five diamonds, he was inviting disaster, in view of the fact that his Forcing Takeout was based on 2 honor-tricks rather than 3½. North's bid of six diamonds cannot be condemned in view of the previous bidding.

The success of the hand apparently depends upon a guess on the diamond finesse, granted a normal distribution of the diamonds and spades. To sum up, I must agree with Capt. McCain in the main on the issue submitted by Mr. Blasdel.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South has opened the bidding with one heart. You are sitting West. What do you bid, holding

♠ K Q 8 4 ♡ 6 2 ◇ A K Q 7 5 4 ♣ 3

Answer: Double. If your partner bids spades you can support him. If he bids no-trump or clubs, the diamond suit affords a safe exit.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Causes of Chorea Are Still a Mystery to Science

Recently I visited a home in which a small boy was the center of household attraction. He was a good looking youngster, well developed, but very pale and restless. The child was irritable and gave every evidence of chorea, yet his parents did not dream he was suffering from any ailment.

Dr. Copeland

"Chorea," or "Saint Vitus' dance," as it is more frequently called, is a common disease of childhood. It usually afflicts children between the fifth and fifteenth years, girls being more susceptible to this ailment than boys. It is more common among the poor than the rich.

Chorea is a serious disease if neglected. Unfortunately, the affliction is often overlooked in children because there is no complaint of pain. The disease is to be suspected when a child appears to fidget and to be clumsy in his movements. As the disease progresses, suspicion is further aroused if the child exhibits difficulty in picking up objects and in walking.

Let me assure you that this disease is neither contagious nor hereditary. But early recognition of chorea in children is of great importance. When the disease is recognized in its early stages and proper measures are taken, the child's health can be completely restored. Likewise the dreaded complications, such as heart disease, can be prevented.

Like rheumatic fever, involvement of the heart is a feared complication of chorea. Neglected chorea and heart disease may result in a permanent defect which will interfere with the future health of the child.

Though the actual cause of chorea has never been discovered, it is probable that it is due to a germ or to bacteria. For this reason it is important that diseased tonsils, adenoids, sinuses and defective teeth be removed.

The child should be kept in bed. This is sometimes a difficult ordeal, but it is now definitely known that great benefit is derived from prolonged rest. The sufferer from chorea should be kept in bed for at deast two or three months. Meals should be served to the child in bed and every effort should be made to avoid exciting and stimulating games. Bear in mind that mental and physical excitement is harmful to these little patients.

Of course the victim of chorea should be under the personal supervision of a physician. He and only he is in a position to prescribe the necessary medicine, the proper diet, care and attention.

Do not disregard signs of restlessness and irritability in a child. Often the child suffering from chorea is backward in his school work, careless, and has periods of loss of [illegible]ory.

GLENDA FARRELL
Charming Warner Brothers' star

SCIENTIST tells WHY this soap is such a wonderful aid in keeping skin YOUTHFUL

YOUTHFUL SKIN . . . what a world of happiness those two words mean to a woman!

Yet too often—and too soon—women see their lovely youthful complexions grow dull, rough, old-looking. WHY?

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Because, science now tells you, skin gradually loses the precious elements nature herself puts in skin to keep it young-looking . . . and it's these precious elements that skin must have to be youthfully attractive.

But here's good news . . . scientists explain now you can check the loss of those precious elements. Lux Toilet Soap actually contains such precious elements . . . and is completely free from harshness, readily soluble. That is why this wonderful soap is an unquestionable aid in keeping skin young-looking . . . softly smooth, they declare.

Do you wonder that 686 out of the 694 important Hollywood actresses are so enthusiastic about this fragrant, white soap . . . have used it for years? And that it's been made the official soap in all the big film studios?

A Lovelier YOU

MILLIONS of women (and men, too) have confirmed Hollywood's experience. You, too, can have a softer, smoother, younger-looking skin with this scientific care. Get Lux Toilet Soap today—and prove it to your own satisfaction.

For EVERY Type of Skin
. . . oily . . . dry . . . "in-between"—

"I can well understand why screen stars prefer it . . ."

says Miss Belle Dawson, of Washington, D. C. "For years I've been using Lux Toilet Soap and the care it has taken of my skin is a delight. My skin is always smooth and clear and it keeps young-looking."

BUSINESS GAIN CREATES 2,000 JOBS HERE

More than 2,000 employes will be added to the payrolls of Pittsburgh stores and factories during June, it was assured today with the announcement of business advance from three important sources.

Two hundred and twenty men have been added to the payroll of the Pressed Steel Car Company and additional men will be hired within a few days as a result of the two largest orders the company has received in more than a year.

BIG CAR ORDER

This was learned today when the company announced it had been assigned an order for 42 narrow-gauge passenger cars by the Grant Park Transportation Company of Chicago. Its plant here already is turning out 100 cast steel street car side frames daily, part of an order for 4,200 frames, officials said.

The frames order alone will give 220 additional men six weeks' work, the announcement stated, and many more will be kept busy on the passenger car schedule.

The cars will be used to transport sightseers from Chicago along the lake front to the Century of Progress grounds and will be joined in trains pulled by small gasoline locomotives.

POWER USE UP

Approximately 2,000 furloughed salespeople on contingent lists of Pittsburgh department stores will be given employment this month by stores holding June sales, it was estimated from figures supplied by the stores. Contingent lists for the individual stores vary from 300 to 1,000 persons.

Industrial power consumption, which for the first five months this year was 7 per cent behind last year, has shown a marked increase this week, according to the Duquesne Light Company. Output for Tuesday and Wednesday had improved to about 2 per cent under last year, it was reported.

DOCTOR SUED BY HUSBAND

A Mt. Lebanon physician today was sued for $50,000 worth of alienated affections.

Dr. Julius E. Gross, of the Embassy Apartments in Beverly road, was named defendant in a suit brought by Benjamin D. Sachs, of Rockland avenue, Beechview.

Sachs contends that the doctor took Mrs. Josephine Citron Sachs on long motor trips, made love to her and presented her with gifts until she became dissatisfied with her husband.

Mrs. Sachs sued her husband for divorce a few months ago, charging cruelty, which he denies.

CHARGES MATE SNUBBED HER

Her husband gave his mother all his affection, Mrs. Natalie Cook, 23, of Sarah street, told Judge Frank P. Patterson in asking a divorce from George Cook, of Giffin street.

Mrs. Cook testified she was ignored while her husband frequently caressed his mother. Also, she charged, the mother and son went to church in the family car, leaving her to go alone to her church.

Miss Yearick, daughter of H. G. Yearick, Homeopathic Hospital superintendent, one of 11 of 1,200 tapped for Mortar Board at the University of Wisconsin. Mortar Board, indicative of high scholarship and wide campus activities, is one of the highest of campus honors.

DEMAND HOTEL FORECLOSURE

A suit seeking foreclosure against the Pittsburgh Hotels Corporation, owner of the William Penn and Fort Pitt hotels, was filed yesterday in Federal Court by the Union Trust Company, trustee, representing first mortgage bondholders.

The trust company said the corporation defaulted March 1 on its first mortgage bonds aggregating $9,960,000. Judge R. M. Gibson appointed Stewart Johnston, of Pittsburgh, to serve as a third receiver. The others, E. C. Eppley, president of the corporation, and H. V. Blaxter, were appointed September 23, 1930.

The court directed the receivers to file an inventory within 30 days and an account of their administration within 90 days. The outstanding first mortgage bonds are of an original issue of $10,350,000 issued in 1923, due March 1, 1948.

PARK OPPOSES SUCCOP PARDON

A commutation of sentence for Bertram L. Succop, former city director of supplies, will be favored, but action for pardon will be opposed, according to District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

An application for Succop's pardon has been filed by Attorney Edward L. Kearns and date for the hearing will be set by the board in Harrisburg on June 21.

Succop has made no application for parole, although he will be eligible in August. He is serving a sentence of one year in the county jail for malfeasance in office.

Girl Mails Letter In Fire Alarm Box

MADISON, Wis., June 1.—A gentleman in Dane, Wis., needn't blame the postal department because he didn't get the letter his girl mailed to him last August 31. She mailed it in a fire alarm box.

SALES ALLOWED DESPITE BEER PERMIT DELAY

Dealers who have applied for permits will be permitted to sell beer until June 5, even though their licenses have not been granted, according to announcement by Deputy County Treasurer A. E. Anke.

The extension came as a result of a conference with District Attorney Andrew T. Park, his assistant, M. Barney Cohen, and Director of Public Safety Harmar D. Denny, Jr. They made a statement which said in part:

"It has been a physical impossibility for the Treasurer's office, with an augmented force, to prepare the licenses for issuance on June 1. After a conference with the law enforcement officials of the city of Pittsburgh and the District Attorney, it was decided that no prosecutions would be entered until June 5 against persons selling beer who can produce a bonafide receipt from the Treasurer showing that they have paid an application fee."

FOR FEE PAYERS ONLY

It was pointed out by Attorney B. Robert Averbach, special counsel for the Treasurer's office, that the extension applied only to the 3,850 applicants who have paid the fees.

Chain restaurants, drug and grocery stores will not be granted licenses if any of their directors live outside the state. Chain organizations of which all officers and directors maintain residences within the state will be granted permits for only one store of each chain, it was announced.

Licenses will be granted all the Pittsburgh hotels that have applied, because, according to Anke, receiverships now in force permit them to meet the provisions of the law.

State Beer Measure Now Controls Sales

HARRISBURG, June 1.—(INS.)—Pennsylvania's 1933 beverage law, more commonly known as the beer control bill, took its place today on the statute books of the commonwealth. Effective at midnight, the act regulates the flow of beer and wine. Its salient features are:

No bars; beverage over spigot-equipped counters allowed if there are stationary chairs.

No sales from midnight Saturday till 6 a. m. Monday, on election days, to insane or intoxicated persons or minors.

No retail sales on credit except by hotels or clubs to registered guests or bona fide members.

Sales for consumption on premises only by licensed retailers.

Penalties: $300 fine maximum for first offense; $500 fine or six months' imprisonment, or both, for second and subsequent offenses.

FREE PATIENTS TO BE SENT TO DOCTORS

A plan adopted by the Allegheny County Medical Society last night relieves hospital dispensaries of the increasing number of free patients by having responsible citizens, temporarily without funds, returned to the family physician.

Members unanimously voted for the resolution indorsing the idea at a special meeting in Hotel Schenley.

The resolution urges that all social agencies and dispensaries refer patients who at one time have been under the care of a private physician back to that physician. Persons without a family physician are to be referred to a neighborhood doctor.

Danger of physicians being pauperized through persons temporarily without funds becoming permanent charges of free dispensaries has been cited by some members.

The physicians plan to treat each case on one of the following bases:

1—To treat the patient for such fee as he and the patient agree is fair.

2—To treat the patient on a deferred payment basis.

3—To treat the patient free.

4—To refer the patient to a dispensary in writing.

The plan is to eliminate duplication of work by dispensaries through having patients now under observation continue to report unless adequate cause exists for a change. The plan does not apply to emergency cases.

The speakers who discussed the plan included Dr. R. R. Jones, Dr. H. G. Schleiter, Dr. Earl E. V. McCormick, Dr. Walter F. Donaldson, Dr. R. R. Higgins, Dr. W. H. Mayer and Wilton H. Robinson. Dr. Thomas B. Carroll, president of the Allegheny Medical Society, presided. About 150 physicians attended.

She is Mrs. Marie Kane, 1908 Rhine st., North Side, Pittsburgh. She said recently:

"My mother raised me on "The Family Physician" Medicine, and when I married she cautioned me never to be without it. I've never forgotten, even when I had to send all the way to Baltimore for it. My four youngsters have been raised on it, too, and I can't begin to tell you how many serious ills it has saved them, to say nothing of the heartaches and worries it has saved me. In addition, I don't know of a single instance when my husband and I have been disappointed in F. P. M., as we call it. We break colds with it, knock a fever out in no time, keep our bowels, liver and stomach in splendid condition. I wish I could personally tell every mother what this splendid medicine has done for us. But words fail me. My advice is to try just one 30c bottle. Any mother who does that will know it's the greatest medicine in the whole wide world."

DOCTOR SHOOTS BANK OFFICIAL

PASADENA, Cal., June 1.—(AP.)—Following up threats with gunshot, a Pasadena physician slightly wounded the vice president of a bank.

Dr. H. M. Griffith, prominent in medical circles, was in the city jail today facing a charge of attempt to murder and assault with a deadly weapon. His victim, M. Vilas Hubbard, of the Citizens' Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, was in a hospital recovering from a wound in the arm.

Police said the doctor was seeking redress for asserted losses in real estate transactions amounting to $50,000 when the shooting occurred yesterday at the home of the banker's father, W. H. Hubbard, who is president of the institution.

The physician was armed with a revolver, a hand grenade such as is used in trench warfare and a knife when he was arrested. Police said they found coils of copper wire and several rolls of bandages in his pockets.

CHAIR FOR TWO POLICE KILLERS

SCRANTON, Pa., June 1.—(AP.)—Death in the electric chair awaits John Riggs, 23-year-old escaped prisoner, the second man convicted of murder in the first degree for the slaying of Police Lieut. Roberts in a holdup.

A jury recommended the death penalty for Riggs last night after deliberating less than three hours.

Wallace Skawinski, of Colchester, Conn., who escaped with Riggs from the Walkhill Prison, New York, met a similar fate at the hands of a jury last week.

Roberts was slain the night of April 1 while attempting, unarmed, to prevent the holdup.

Two other men, Paul Bader and Clarence Jackson, are under indictment for murder in the same case.

KATHARINE HEPBURN, MENJOU -:- Film Stars in Comedy With Rudy Vallee -:- ON THE AIR TONIGHT

Truth Serum Test Listed For Radio

A new tempo for radio showmanship is set tonight when another fast moving Rudy Vallee hour takes the air over NBC-WCAE at 8 o'clock.

From filmdom come Katharine Hepburn and Adolphe Menjou to head the bill with a one-act comedy entitled "A Marriage Has Been Arranged;" from the stage, Eleanor Shaler, exponent of comedy songs who skyrocketed to fame in "The Grand Street Follies," and Harry Hershfield, comedian, and, direct from an engagement in England, Rhys and Owens, piano and song outfit. The Regimentalists, a male chorus, featuring John Gurney, baritone, complete the list of guests.

Miss Hepburn

So much has been said about this new "truth" serum that the radio moguls have decided to give the eavesdroppers a demonstration via NBC-KDKA at 10:30 tonight. Col. Calvin H. Goddard, managing director of the scientific crime detection laboratory of Northwestern University, will make the test. The subject, as yet unselected, probably will be a radio announcer.

Clicks from the radio news ticker—

Columbia officials will be surprised and annoyed to discover here that WJZ-KDKA's bookings from the casino at the world's fair, include 5 p. m. broadcasts beginning June 3, and continuing thereafter on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays, by Columbia's "exclusive" pet—the Guy Lombardo Orchestra.

The Sherlock Holmes series has faded from the air. Lack of material is the answer. It seems that all the A. Conan Doyle stories have been used up or repeated.

If the Paul Whiteman two-hour Monday night shows are to materialize the condensed milk program at NBC will have to change time—or it may even quit.

With Lennie Hayton, a New Yorker, Lou Holtz, a Californian, Grace Moore, a southerner, and Norman Brokenshire, a Canuck, the off-again-on-again cigaret hour returns to WJAS Monday night for a weekly series of 30-minute entertainments.

After six years of haneing about in the NBC studios, Phil Dewey, the warbler, has got around to notifying the publicity department that the proper spelling of his last tag is "Duey." Hereafter, he'll be billed as Philip Duey.

Donald Novis is [illegible] that he missed his first feast last night and Ethel Simmons pinch-sang for him.

Leo Reisman's orchestra is returning to the air on a sustaining basis and will be audible from a Chicago hotel half an hour after Sunday midnights, over the WJZ net, but probably not in Pittsburgh.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

When it comes to collecting scrap book items, O. P. Merriman, of Highland Towers, has few, if any, equals.

One of his prize possessions is the emancipation proclamation of Abraham Lincoln, written in a beautiful flowing hand. The letters are so shaded that at first glance the document appears to be a portrait of the Great Humanitarian.

Mrs. Stafford is wondering whether the Globe Trotter is forgetting outside communities when Pittsburgh weather is being discussed. Last time he raved over the beautiful, sunshiny day it was cat and dogging in Munhall.

* * *

Mrs. Gray—Don't know whether Col. Lindbergh is a Republican or not, but during the last election he came out for Herbert Hoover.

Mrs. Rosenberg—If those are cut worms annoying your roses that bran, molasses and paris green combination, published recently, will tempt the pests to their doom.

Bank and Gold Emergency Act, legalization of beer, economy cuts, reforestation corps, Muscle Shoals and Tennessee Valley development, half billion for direct unemployment relief, farm relief-mortgage refinancing and inflation, and the security act.

Mrs. Pearle Lohry, Beaver—Thanks to the Associated Press, here is the record of the major legislation passed by this session of Congress and enacted into law by President Roosevelt to date:

Talk by Commerce Leader on Air

An address by Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, at a luncheon meeting of th Pittsburgh Chamber tomorrow will be broadcast by KDKA beginning at 1:15 p. m. Mr. Harriman's subject will be "The Industrial Recovery Bill."

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars.

The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results.

Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the drive-shaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too,—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

To MOTHERS

Greatest Purchasing Agents Of them All!

IF our purchasing agents, our buyers, followed Economic Laws, and these only—Kaufmann's would not hold this 62nd Anniversary!

Now, it is a matter of cold fact, that in many instances, our buyers cannot rebuy today at the selling prices they have pledged for this Anniversary. In the face of such determined, maintained price advances, it is easy to see that we could make more immediate dollar-gain by withholding our traditional time-honored Annual Event.

Why then sell for less than we can restock? Why? You know the answer! You mothers, most of all, know the enduring value of keeping faith. And we too, shall keep faith!

Against the relentless current of higher costs, this Anniversary must take place as usual. When it comes to the privilege of celebrating our 62nd Birthday, it is not the profit of the moment that counts most, rather, it is the long-time pull. Our decision to go ahead with the Anniversary is simply sound business building.

S. H. CHURCH DENOUNCES 'FANATICISM' OF DRYS

POLITICS

No Special Session Before Winter

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Probability of a special session of the Legislature before next winter is so dim as to be negligible.

From assorted groups, with varying ideas about which "there ought to be a law" immediately, have come demands for the session this summer.

Mr. Shields

First was the insistence that failure to pass old age pension legislation should be remedied. Then sweatshop conditions brought a cry for that legislation on minimum wages and hours which the regular session had refused to consider.

As a climax came the revelation that three Justices of the Pennsylvania appellate courts — Justices Kephart and Schaffer, of the Supreme Court, and Baldrige, of the Superior Court—were on the Morgan tip list, and this brought a demand from some quarters that a special session be held for their impeachment.

Short Time to Bring Change of Heart

There is no supporting evidence to indicate that any of these groups, separately or connectedly, will bring about a special session.

Dismissing the last instance first, there will be no special session on that account. Impeachment can only come for a misdemeanor or violation of written rules, and what the justices did is not covered by any statute or ordinance. If they do not wish to resign—and they do not—there isn't anything to be done through the Legislature.

As to the social legislation which failed of enactment in the regular session, it is improbable that this short time would bring a change of heart on the part of members of House or Senate who turned thumbs down on the various bills only a few weeks ago.

Public opinion has been aroused, especially on the old age pension subject, but many of the members who were cold on the subject are not to be influenced by public opinion unless that public opinion is translated into instructions from a single constituent—or boss.

Odd Reasoning to Minimum Wage Backer

As to minimum wage legislation, even the Pinchot administration toward the end of the session was uncertain as to the advisability of pushing it. The Governor, it is understood, wished to know how much the state was really stirred on the subject. This was before Mrs. Pinchot entered the fight and dramatized the situation.

It is reliably reported that proponents of minimum wage and labor legislation, when they sought to force the issue as they did with the old age pensions, seeking to have the bills taken from committees, did not receive any enthusiastic backing from the so-called Pinchot elements of the state. At least one of those private citizens most eager for remedial legislation claims to have been told by some Senators last vigorous for old age pensions, that there was little use in making another losing fight unless the vote was to be close.

This was odd reasoning to the minimum wage backer, and to anyone else except the professional student of politics. What the lukewarm heroes meant that if there was no chance to dramatize the situation politically the fight wasn't worth the energy.

No Changed Attitude On Pensions or Wage

There has been no change of heart yet on either old age pensions or minimum wage. The Senators, at least, are set, including some of those who had lined up with Mr. Pinchot during the session, but who voted against old age pensions.

Democrats in the Senate, who also wanted no test vote on minimum wages, after the old age fight, are not eager for a session now. Nor is Mr. Pinchot. The Republican organization, of course, wants no session now or next winter.

The Democrats and Mr. Pinchot, while feeling things should be bettered through legislation, feel there is no emergency, and that next winter will be time enough to try. Also, next winter will be a more politically expedient time for the session, being that much closer to the state-wide primary and general election.

So, for all of these reasons,

Better Times Night Decreed by Herron

MISS BEULAH COREY . . SHE'LL RIDE A HORSE IN THE PARADE

Tube City Teacher Named to Lead Paraders

Under the scepter of prosperity, wielded by Miss Beulah Corey, McKeesport school teacher, as "Miss Better Times," the extravaganza of "Better Times Night" will burst upon Pittsburgh tomorrow night with all of the hilarity of a Fourth of July celebration.

Mayor John S. Herron has given the stamp of official approval by proclaiming the parade and pageant that will start from Schenley Park at 6:30 p. m. Blonde Miss Corey, astride a horse, will lead the procession of 100 floats, hilarious college students, bands and civic and patriotic organizations.

The parade will proceed over Bigelow boulevard to Fifth avenue, to Liberty avenue, to Sixth street, to Stockton avenue, to Irwin avenue where it will disband.

"Old Man Hard Times" will be "officially" borne to his final resting place in a hearse, escorted by 50 dancing pallbearers and a band playing, "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal, You."

Joining the Pittsburgh groups represented in the parade will be more than 300 members of the Ukranian Americanization League from McKees Rocks, a woman's band from McKeesport, the drill team of the Greentree Fire Department, the Tarentum American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, No. 85.

Carnegie Tech students will participate with the Sigma Nu fraternity represented by a float. Other students will march in groups under their school banners.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company have notified Milton D. Crandall, parade director, that the company will be represented by a band and an exhibit which will feature an old Herron Hill street car drawn by mules. On display with the old car will be a modern street car.

WINS WIDE SUPPORT

Commendation of the purpose of tomorrow night's parade and pageant came today from the city's judicial, political, business and social leaders.

Commending the event are Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Joseph Dilworth, Judge Benjamin Lencher, Councilman Frank L. Duggan, Harry Bastow, W. H. R. Hilliard, Thruston Wright, Joseph N. Mackrell, Joseph W. Marsh, Judge W. Heber Dithrich, and Col. H. L. Landers.

Among the members of the general committee of 100 are: Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, Councilman W. Y. English, Mayor Herron, J. F. Deasy, Albert C. Lehman, Samuel Harden Church, F. R. Phillips, Frank J. Lanahan, Charles E. Dickey, Dr. Thomas S. Baker, Judge James H. Gray, F. A. Keating, Robert Clark, J. F. McCandless, A. H. Wilharm, Benno Janssen, Charles C. McKallip, A. C. Robinson, Will J. Hyett, Harry A Little, Dr. W. J. McGregor, Judge Ambrose B. Reid, Benjamin Thaw, Councilman William J. Soost, Judge Frank A. Piekarski, Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, Judge Thomas M. Marshall, Thomas Fitzgerald, David I. McCahill, Supt. of Police Franklin T. McQuaide, H. C. Milholland, James C. Chaplin, Judge Elder W. Marshall, William P. Witherow and Edgar J. Kaufmann, honorary chairman.

PINCHOT SIGNS TAX BILL HE DISLIKES

Scores Coyne Measure Carrying Huge Fees For Collector

HARRISBURG, June 1.—Approval of the Coyne bill fixing the interest rate on delinquent taxes in Allegheny County was announced today by Gov. Pinchot.

In making public his signing the bill the Governor said he would have preferred to approve similar measures sponsored by Senator William D. Mansfield, of McKeesport, or Representative John J. O'Keefe, of Pittsburgh. He said:

"I approve this bill, not because it is good, but because it is only a little more than half as bad as the present law covering the subject."

FEES ALLOWED

The Coyne bill fixes the interest rate for delinquent taxes at 6 per cent a year. When taxes become delinquent the collector is permitted to add an additional 5 per cent for the cost of collection. The collector of delinquent taxes is permitted to retain this 5 per cent penalty.

The Governor added:

"The office of delinquent tax collector in Allegheny County has milked from the delinquent county taxpayers over a period of four years beginning January 1, 1928, and ending January 1, 1932, by himself and his deputies, approximately three quarters of a million dollars in tax collectors' commissions.

"The delinquent tax collector holding the office during this period collected commissions for himself amounting to $487,104.96. His total expenditures for salaries, postage, printing, stationery, supplies, and miscellaneous expenses amounted to to $155,541.20, leaving net commissions for his own use amounting to $331,563.76.

MORE THAN PRESIDENT

"The President of the United States during the same period was paid $31,563.76 less than the delinquent tax collector of Allegheny County.

"The Republican organization of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania must necessarily assume full responsibility for the continuation of this iniquitous system in Allegheny County.

"In the extraordinary session of 1931 and in the session of 1933 that organization killed bills which would have abolished the office of delinquent tax collector in Allegheny."

REGISTRATION BILL VETOED

HARRISBURG, June 1.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot yesterday vetoed the Harris (Allegheny) bill designed for permanent registration of voters in Pittsburgh and Scranton.

The Governor said Senator Harris vigorously urged veto of his bill on the ground that changes made in the measure in the course of its passage through the Legislature "so emasculated the bill as to make it entirely unworkable and a step backward instead of a step forward in election reform."

The Governor stated that provisions stricken from the bill would have prevented persons from voting who are not registered and provided the right to challenge voters on election day.

PENSION FUND DECISION NEAR

County Commissioners today agreed to meet at noon tomorrow with Controller Robert G. Woodside to determine what is to be done about the county pension fund.

Payments of pensions have been held up for four months, during which state legislation has been sought in an effort to put the fund on a sound basis.

An amended pension bill passed at Harrisburg increasing the 1 per cent contribution of employes to 3 and raising the pension age limit. Whether these changes have put the fund on a firm financial foundation will be decided tomorrow by the county officials with the help of a report from George B. Buck, New York actuary.

Chairman C. C. McGovern today declared:

"A lot of people on the pension fund are worthy even though there are also a lot of vultures and tramps."

Commissioner C. M. Barr declared he will fight any pension setup that is not sound.

Ohio River Yields Man's Battered Body

The body of a man with broken ribs and head wounds was taken from the Ohio River at Ferry street, Sewickley, today. An autopsy disclosed the wounds were inflicted before he entered the water, Dr. T. R. Helmbold said. The man, aged about 55, was not identified.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 1.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Roosevelt has been for six weeks trying to find a Republican. He wanted to put him on the economic conference and send him to London. Well, he finally located one, Senator Jim Couzens, of Detroit, and he admitted being one just to get the trip. I tell you it takes bribery to get a fellow to write Republican after his name nowadays.

Will Rogers

Well, they are leaving with high hopes, and it would be wonderful if they could do something beside seeing the King when he delivers his address.

Yours, WILL.

DRYS TO HEAR M'SPARRAN

John A. McSparran, state secretary of agriculture, will be the principal speaker at tomorrow night's session of the Prohibition Emergency Conference in the Second Presbyterian Church.

At the afternoon meeting, the report of the "Findings Committee" will be read. This committee includes Dr. A. R. Robinson, pastor, Sixth United Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchinson, pastor, East Liberty Presbyterian Church.

The purpose of the sessions is to effect a militant county dry organization to continue the fight for prohibition, according to its sponsors, A. T. Morgan, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Gibson, J. E. Morrison and Dr. James M. McQuilkin. Dr. Omer B. Poulson, of Harrisburg, state secretary, will report on the progress in the state.

HITS W. C. T. U. FOR VIEW OF HIBBEN DEATH

Clergymen Attacked For Political Lobbying

Church leaders who champion prohibition and other laws "to govern the private conduct of the American people" were assailed last night by Samuel Harden Church in a nation-wide radio hookup over KDKA.

Mr. Church charged the W. C. T. U. with "shameless fanaticism" because of a statement recently attributed to a convention speaker that the death of former President Hibben, of Phinceton—foe of prohibition—was an "act of Providence" in that he had been killed in a collision with a beer truck.

CRIME WAVE CITED

Instead of being the boon predicted by churchmen, Mr. Church asserted, prohibition has resulted in an "overwhelming wave of crime, graft, dishonesty, official betrayal, kidnaping, racketeering, banditry and constant murder."

In Pittsburgh, he said, arrests for drunkenness jumped from 14,000 in 1918 to 32,000 in 1932.

Mr. Church questioned the propriety of clergymen "entering the arena of politics" and seeking to ban not only only liquor but "tobacco, horse racing, public dancing, boxing, Sunday pastimes and card playing for a stake which means bridge." Laws to prohibit these would offend those constitutional amendments designed to safeguard personal liberty, he contended.

RESENT RESTRAINT

Mr. Church concluded:

"Liberal men and women deeply resent the fact that there is now established at Washington an organization known as the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, whose purpose it is to lobby for the passage, through Congress and also through the state legislatures, of laws which will increasingly hamper and restrain the freedom of conduct and the happiness of life of the American people.

"Public morals! What right have the political leaders of any church in this country to presume to dictate legislation on public morals? The men who have let loose these destructive forces should remember that theological oppression against the liberal spirit of the age has impelled 80,000,000 of the American people to turn their backs upon the churches of this country—that is shown in the latest census—80,000,000 out of the church. And headlong obstinacy and hopeless bigotry will alienate other millions."

SAFE STEALERS SENT TO PEN

Three youths pleaded guilty in court today to stealing a safe containing $3,400 from the home of John Sobieski, 24 Second street, Rankin.

Edward Schultz, 21, of Braddock Township, and Morris Shane, 20, of Braddock, were sentenced from three to six years each in the penitentiary. George Farkus, of Braddock Township, was sentenced from one and one-half to three years.

They told Judge S. H. Gardner they split the money three ways and spent it for automobiles and in cabarets. Detectives recovered $560.

PRIEST CLEARED IN AUTO DEATH

A Coroner's jury today exonerated the Rev. Father Andrew J. Schneider, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, 426 George street, Braddock, in connection with the death of a man struck by the priest's automobile.

Father Schneider testified Andrew D. Jovin, 53, 109 Beaver avenue, Aliquippa, was injured fatally when he stepped from behind another car into the path of his machine in the Boulevard of the Allies, May 24. He said he tried to avoid the accident, but the side of the car hit Jovin.

Cane Mightier Than Umbrella For Professor

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Robby chased his freshmen three fast laps around the academic track when they developed pacifistic reflexes. Same luxury being paid for by taxpayers of New York.

The professor got in some good prodding with his bumbershoot, but should have more clubs in his bag. He can get some splendid results with a very fine malacca cane.

Malacca is whippy and will raise educational welts through a coat and two pairs of trousers. Every professor should have one and be allowed to tee up students in the fairways.

His umbrella is now in a plaster cast with three broken ribs.

New Tunnels Urged As Traffic Aid

A vehicular tunnel under the lower Hill District from Seventh and Webster avenues to Fifth avenue to conect with the Armstrong Tunnels, and twin tubes under Mt. Washington from the head of South Tenth street to McKinley Park are included in a new traffic artery proposed by John M. Phillips.

Phillips' plan was presented to the County Commissioners, who, without comment, turned it over to E. L. Schmidt, county planning engineer, who will bring it up for discussion at a meeting of the commission. The proposed traffic artery would provide a new outlet for traffic bound from downtown Pittsburgh to the outer Saw Mill Run and the Brownsville avenue districts.

The downtown tunnel would extend from the head of Seventh avenue to Fifth avenue, running under Wylie avenue and emerging into Fifth avenue at grade. It would connect directly with the Armstrong tubes.

The tunnels under Mt. Washington would begin under the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad and emerge in McKinley Park, joining the McKinley Park branch of the Sawmill Run boulevard.

A traffic plaza in McKinley Park is proposed, and traffic would lead off into Knoxville and Mt. Oliver by way of Bausman street and to Sawmill Run boulevard by way of the McKinley Park branch. The new artery would continue on by way of Conniston avenue in Bon Aire, over Dalle avenue and Taft avenue to Telfair street. Telfair street and Nobles lane would be connected by an 800-foot viaduct.

TAX ON INCOMES SEEN AS SNAG TO RECOVERY

The difficulties of the average businessman with his income tax are pictured as a real obstacle in the path of business recovery by several citizens interviewed on their attitude toward the present income tax law.

Many Pittsburgh businessmen believe a sales tax collected at the source might well replace the revenue provided by the income tax. It is pointed out the sales tax would be paid by all consumers and in such a way it would be the least felt.

Even those who do not favor the sales tax urge a reform in the income tax law to eliminate the deduction of capital losses which enabled J. P. Morgan and others of means to avoid paying income tax during the depression years.

Interviews with citizens engaged in various lines of business activity and in various professions follow:

Attorney William N. McNair:

"I am opposed to the income tax either for state or federal revenue. As an attorney, I think the difficulty of the average business man about his income tax is one of the factors in the delay of business expansion. The uncertainty of the tax is a very discouraging feature to anyone trying to establish new enterprises."

I. Leonard Aronson, president of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League:

"I believe the income tax law should be changed to prevent the deduction of capital losses. I am a great believer in a manufacturers' sales tax levied at the source and would include under it everything except food. In Canada they have a sales tax, and no one ever realizes it. The income tax is a rotten system because the poor man pays. There should be no increases in income taxes. Instead, the income of government bonds should be taxed."

E. N. Hunting, architect:

"I am against the present form of the income tax allowing deductions for capital losses. I am very much in favor of the sales tax, which I believe to be the most equitable that could be placed."

William Fisher, manager Fourth avenue garage:

"If we had the sales tax, I believe we would be better off. You would pay it and not feel it so much. For the small business man the payment of income tax is a real problem. I don't think an increase in the income tax rate is justified on net incomes of $4,000 or less. Anyone making less than $5,000 a year should pay only a very small income tax."

P. T. Fagan, district president, United Mine Workers:

"The present income tax system is rotten. There are too many loopholes for the benefit of big business. I am opposed to the deduction for capital losses clause."

there won't be any session this summer.

Grundy Holds No Political Conferences

Former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, in Pittsburgh Monday on private business matters, engaged in no political conferences. It is no secret that the friends of the Senator here will be for Mayor John S. Herron, principally because he is supported by Senator James J. Coyne. This obligation goes back to 1930 when Coyne was active for Mr. Grundy in the Republican primary.

But this had nothing to do with the former senator's visit. He has loyal and able lieutenants here who do not need the spur of a personal visit to know what to do.

On the subject of a special session the former senator also was silent, but it is known that he feels the action on social legislation taken last winter was proper, and there is no reason, therefore, to believe that any Senator or Representative who follows his lead would have a change of spirit—this summer or next winter, for that matter.

The attitude of the Senator is merely cited as evidence that the party leaders, such as Mr. Grundy, Mr. Mellon and Gen. Martin, are unimpressed so far over any public clamor.

Priest Forced to Give Up Coxtown Project

County, State Raise Obstacles Too Great To Be Surmounted

Father Cox has reluctantly abandoned the "Coxtown" project. A year ago he had plans and visions for permanently establishing a self-supporting community for the poor out on Kittanning Pike. He was confronted with obstacles from the start. The attractive land he had purchased is in the fashionable Fox Chapel district and the wealthy residents out there didn't welcome the Father Cox idea. The county increased the taxes and, in the meantime, the state demanded equipment and improvement in sanitation that would have required a small fortune to install.

The depression was well on when he launched the project a year ago and conditions did not improve. He has had to feed, clothe and house about 50 families in this settlement for a year while donations of food and money have been constantly on the decrease. In fact he has had barely enough to "carry on" with his breadline and the aid for the hundreds of families that he has supplied with food and clothing all winter.

Under these conditions he could not see a successful future for "Coxtown" and today the remaining families in that unique community are moving out. Father Cox has made arrangements for their immediate care by other welfare agencies. He said this morning as he saw them depart:

"It is just a dream that didn't come true. I had great hopes for 'Coxtown,' but the obstacles in the face of my many other responsibilities, were too great. I am jumping almost unsurmountable hurdles every day, but the 'Coxtown' hurdle was almost too big to be jumped. It, at least, served the purpose for a year. Had economic conditions improved six months ago 'Coxtown' would still be on the map. Although considerably incumbered I still control this beautiful wooded land and have other plans in mind for its employment."

W.VA. GOVERNOR DINNER GUEST

Western Pennsylvania Democrats at a dinner in honor of Postmaster General James A. Farley Saturday in the William Penn Hotel are to hear Gov. Herman G. Kump, of West Virginia, County Chairman David L. Lawrence announced today.

Other speakers will be Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and Joseph F. Guffey, state Democratic chairman.

COAL MEN HERE UNITE UNDER ROOSEVELT

Formation of the Coal Operators' Association of Western Pennsylvania today shares the spotlight with sporadic wage increases and strikes in the tri-state coal area. Organization of the operators along lines laid down in the Roosevelt industry control bill is expected to be completed at a meeting this afternoon in Hotel William Penn, attended by producers of high volatile coal in the district.

B. H. Canon, secretary, said:

"This group believes the coal industry can be regulated only with federal aid."

Today's meeting follows a strike of 300 miners at the Lilley mine of the Paisley interests, near California, Pa., and the closing of the Amend plant of the Irwin Gas and Coal Company, near Uniontown, where 300 miners have been on strike several weeks.

P. T. Fagan, district president of the United Mine Workers, said the walkout at the Lilley mine was the result of low wages and poor working conditions.

Brighter news is reported by the Republic Iron and Steel Company. It has granted 500 miners at its Republic mine a 10 per cent wage increase, effective today.

Auguring well for the effectiveness of organization in bettering the condition of the miner, more than 75,000 bituminous coal miners in the Appalachian region today received pay increases of 10 to 18 per cent, officials of the co-operative group announced.

Otis Skinner's 'Uncle Tom' Revives Memories of Famous Play

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Last week Pittsburgh saw a new play called "Hamlet," and this week New York is seeing a novel drama called "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Believe it or not, Otis Skinner is playing Uncle Tom. This is nothing new for him, as he first acted the part at the ripe age of 19. Nearly every famous actor has appeared in this play at some time or other. Young Joe Jefferson acted Gumption Cute. Both Lawrence Barrett and Mrs. Fiske have done their bit in picking cotton and getting sold down the river. For "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the most popular American play of the last 80 years. The nearest approach to it in popularity is by "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" and "East Lynne."

Mr. Seibel

The New York revival, which will run one week only, is the annual production of The Players, that aristocratic club of actors and literati housed in the old home of Edwin Booth, in Gramercy Park.

Last year they put on Shakespeare's "Troilus and Cressida," the most unpopular play in the world. This year it's the most popular, for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" beats "Abie's Irish Rose," "Charley's Aunt," and anything else except "Hamlet." In 1902 some one counted 16 companies still on tour in the U. S. A.

THE PLAYERS CAST

Besides Otis Skinner as Uncle Tom, a role for which his mellow and genial personality fits him admirably, there is Fay Bainter as Topsy, the girl who just "growed" and whose wickedness is her pride and joy.

Little Eva is played by Lois Shore—and her ascension to heaven (the pulleys always used to creak) should dispel any lingering doubts of skeptics who think heaven is just a state of mind. It's a place up in the flies.

Cecilia Loftus is Aunt Chloe, while Simon Legree is played by Thomas Chalmers, who gets roundly hissed as he cracks his blacksnake whip.

In one respect the production falls down. There's only one Lawyer Marks. The old-time Uncle Tommers usually had two Markses, sometimes three, with donkeys and jubilee singers ad lib.

SOME STAGE HISTORY

The original Uncle Tom was Greene C. Germon; the original Eva was the 14-year-old Cordelia, daughter of George C. Howard, manager of the Museum at Troy, N. Y. Howard got the idea of dramatizing Mrs. Stowe's novel, published in 1852, and got his brother-in-law, George L. Aiken, to do the job. Mrs. Howard played Topsy, he himself was St. Clair, so it was more or less a family affair.

Howard used to walk around town in his costume—a black broadcloth frock coat with brass buttons, and lavender trousers—so that people would point him out and say, "There goes Little Eva's fathe!"

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" ran for 100 nights in Troy, and then 200 times in New York City, where an earlier version had only lasted 11 performances. They finally had to give three shows a day, and the actors never took off their makeup, having their meals brought to the stage.

The lachrymose drama based on the sensational novel made such a hit as to justify President Lincoln's greetin, when he first met Harriet Beech towe:

"So this i e little woman whose book l ught on this big war!"

Beechview Church Holding Food Show

A food show will be held in the Beechview Christian Church, Broadway and Shiras avenues, from 7:30 to 9 p. m. tomorrow. Two hours of talking pictures will follow the show. Proceeds will go to church funds.

Accidents Will Happen

SOMEWHERE on my desk is a clipping that proves this case completely. I tell you that because the story of Mrs. William Jones is a strange one, and you are liable to be a trifle skeptical about it.

But let me begin at the beginning which, in this case, isn't a very happy one. We find the head of the Jones household engaged in a very lively domestic battle with his little wifie. Mr. Jones, to make this story slightly different, was doing most of the talking. Because he felt that he had a very real grievance.

The facts were these, as we attorneys are wont to say:

Mrs. Jones had succumbed to the persuasions of an insurance salesman. No, not in the motion picture sense. I simply mean that, unknown to her husband, she had made the first payment on a sizable insurance policy. And not a life insurance policy, mind you.

No, this was an accident policy. It stated, in complicated lingo, that if Florentine Jones banged her knee or fractured her skull, the company would be only too happy to cover the costs of her accident. Provided, of course, that her weekly payments arrived on the dot.

It was these weekly payments that irked friend husband.

"I don't understand," he stormed. "With all the important things we need money for these days, I don't see why you had to take this blamed thing out. Heaven knows, I have enough bills to worry about now! What made you do it? Can you tell me that?"

The little lady sighed dreamily.

"He was such a nice young man," she replied. "And he was so anxious for me to take the policy for my own good. And look, William; look what he left after I signed it."

She went to a drawer and took out a small leather writing pad and a pencil.

"Look, William," she enthused, "he gave me both of these. Said they were a present from the company."

William groaned and gritted his teeth.

"He gave you a pad that must be worth all of 5 cents," he cried helplessly, "and a pencil you could buy anywhere for a penny!

"If you were ever exposed to danger, that would be different. But you scarcely go outside the house. And who's going to pay those weekly premiums, that's what I'd like to know?"

Mrs. Jones smiled sweetly.

"That's for you to worry about," she told him. "Besides, you never can tell what might happen.

"And don't you think it was sweet of him to leave those little souvenirs? It's not the value of things, you know, William. It's the sentiment that counts."

William groaned again, and gave up the argument for the time being. But the argument wasn't closed by any matter of means. And as time rolled by, the insurance policy was Mr. Jones' favorite topic.

Let an argument start at any given point, it invariably wounds up with a few choice remarks about Mrs. Jones' stupidity in signing anything without first consulting him, and the fact that his finances were feeling the strain of those weekly payments. It grew to be almost a mania with the man, and every time he started anew on the subject, Mrs. Jones sighed heavily.

For she knew he was good for at least an hour . . .

You may be certain, gentle reader—and every time I write that phrase I can't help wondering what makes authors think their readers are gentle—that Florence had her accident. What good would the story be and how would she become the wife triumphant if an accident hadn't happened?

Here's how it happened: A few months later, as Jones sat in his office one morning, the telephone rang. His secretary took the message and, as the conclusion of the conversation, turned and gazed at her boss with some concern.

"Mr. Jones," she asserted, "I think you'd better go home right away. Your wife met with an accident. I don't think it's very serious because they said there was no real cause for worry. She slipped, they said, and injured her hip—and they want you home at once. Shall I call a cab?"

William, pale as Winchell before a sunburn, stood up and reached for his hat.

"You're sure it's nothing serious?" he pleaded. "Oh, my poor Florence! My poor, dear wife! This is awful. Yes, get me a cab right away, Miss Blitzenheim."

All the way home the man was in a distracted frame of mind. When he reached home at last he bolted up the stairs. And he was just in time to meet the doctor coming out of his wife's room.

"Tell me, doc," he cried, "is it serious? What happened? Will she be all right? Is she badly hurt?"

The medico shook his head consolingly.

"There's nothing to worry about," he told William. "She's had a rather nasty fall, and her hip is dislocated slightly. But I can assure you that she'll be all right again in a few weeks if she just keeps quiet."

William drew a long sigh of relief and tiptoed into his wife's bedroom.

"Darling," he murmured, and he never realized that it had taken an accident to make him give out the first "darling" in almost a year, "I'm sorry this happened."

His wife made the most of her opportunity.

"You see, William," were her words, "you were wrong after all, and I was right. I did have an accident, and the money that went into the policy wasn't wasted. That nice young man was right after all, wasn't he?"

And because the husband was still shaken and uncertain, he wasn't in his usual good form that day. He merely nodded, patted his wife's hand and she said nothing.

It was two or three weeks before the insurance company got around to sending a representative to investigate the Jones case. By that time Alice was hobbling around with the aid of a cane. William had stayed at home that morning to make certain that things were settled in a satisfactory manner.

The investigator took down the facts. And they were just a trifle strange. He admitted freely that it was one of the oddest cases he had ever encountered. For Florence, it seems, had dislocated her hip after slipping on a lead pencil.

"I think I still have the pencil," she said, "with some of the scratches on it. Just a moment."

She hobbled to the desk drawer and brought out the pencil. William and the investigator took one look—and both nearly fainted. For it was the very same pencil, with the name of the insurance company printed on it, that the very nice young man had given her when she signed the policy...

Cupid to Star Really in Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 1.—Some day Ginger Rogers and Lew Ayres may have a falling out, but their romance will be preserved in celluloid.

The RKO studio, a rather commercial-minded cupid, is signing Lew to play opposite Ginger in the much postponed "Rafter Romance."

If Hollywood's latest cooers are still that way about each other when the film is released, theaters over the land will cash in on the publicity given to the friendship. If something happens, well Ginger and Lew are two popular players anyway.

While contracts are not signed as yet, the RKO picture probably will be the first thing Lew does after leaving Universal. He is now officially free, having completed his agreement.

Just to brush up your memory, "Rafter Romance" is one of the stories in which Merian C. Cooper intended to co-star Dorothy Jordan and Joel McCrea.

Clara Bow has promised to be in Sam Rork's office next week to talk story. Despite much hard work, the producer hasn't been able to settle on a vehicle for the redhead's second come-back picture. This doesn't bother Clara very much. She has enough money to live on, she hates the rigid training to keep down the pounds, and she never has been particularly sold on the talkies. Anyway, the redhead will be coming back from the ranch soon, for Rex Bell has to make two more pictures under his contract.

World's Fair On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The opening of the Chicago World's Fair is pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The pictures show the parade through the downtown streets of the city, and then Postmaster General James A. Farley, as the representative of President Roosevelt is seen and heard as he reads the President's greetings and congratulations. Then follows pictures of the crowds and of the really completed exposition. The greatest thrill of all, however, comes with the pictures of the first illumination of the exposition in which a beam of light that left the star Arcturus 40 years ago, made the contact that turned the grounds into a fairyland of light. It is one of the most magnificent electrical displays ever photographed. The Globe Trotter gives a graphic description of it all.

Norman H. Davis, the American "Ambassador at Large," is seen and heard at the session of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, in which he gave assurance of American co-operation in international affairs which has caused such a furor.

Jack Dempsey is seen in a fast and furious round of boxing with Max Schmeling at Lake Swannanoa, N. J., and later in another round with Max Baer at Atlantic City, two heavyweights who are to meet, Dempsey, the former champion, is promoting the fight.

Al Smith is seen and heard as he awards the championship to a young Italian as the champioin pushcart merchant of New York's East Side. The former presidential candidate delivers his usual witty speech and the pushcart man is heard in an equally witty reply.

The U. S. tennis team competing in the contest for the zone championship, preliminary to the Davis Cup contest, at Washington, is pictured. Ellsworth Vines overcomes Hector Cataruzza, the Argentine champion. Wilmer Allison and Adriano Zappa, the Argentine team leader, are also seen in action. The American team wins.

(Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

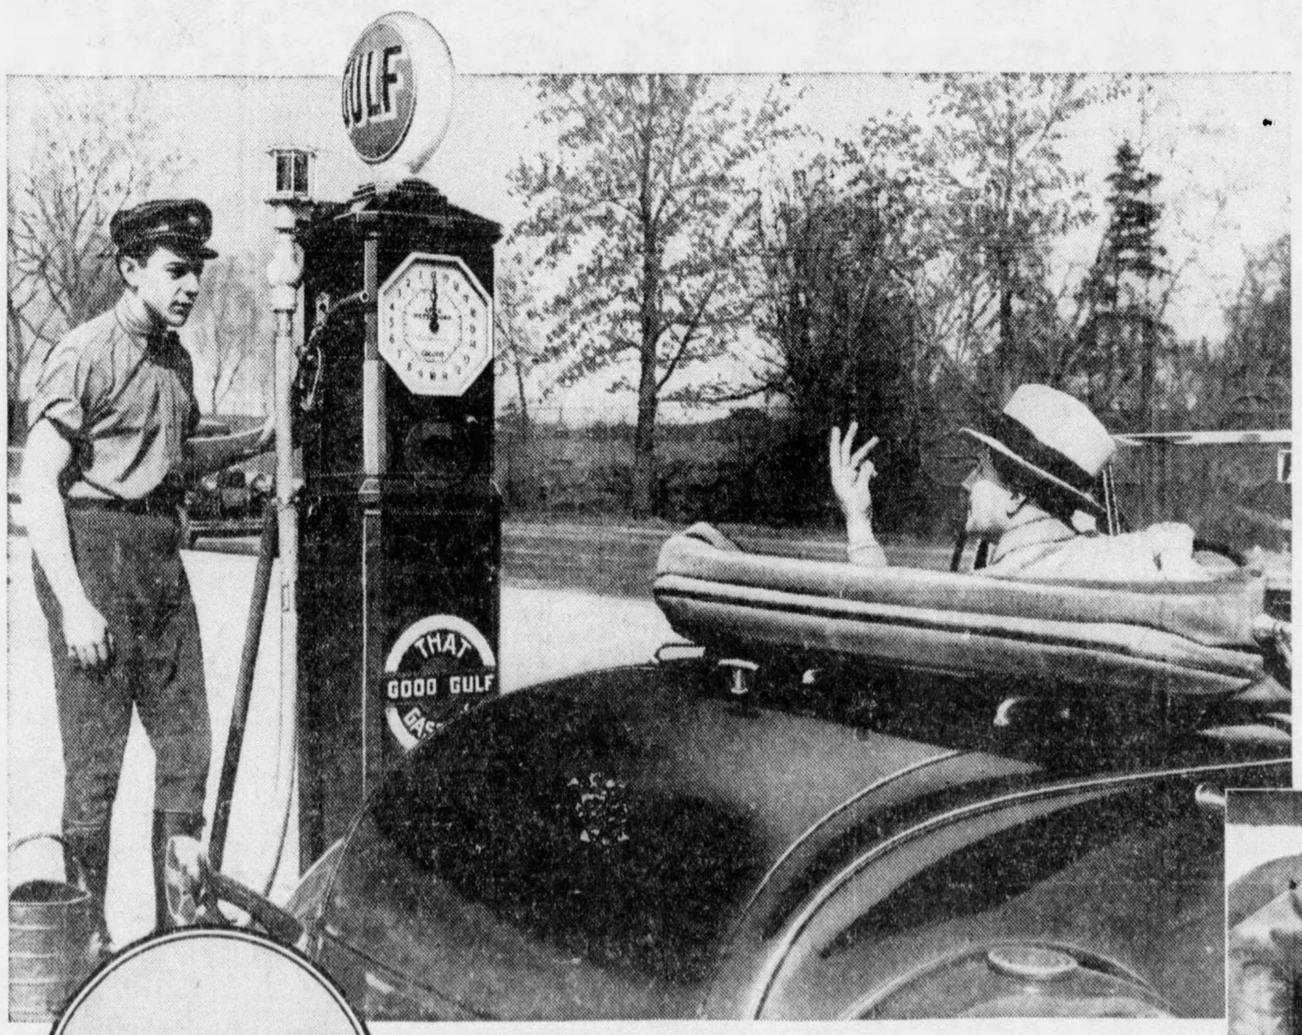
5 proofs . . . fresh Gulf gas costs less



EVERY one of the five points described here is based on months of experiments made by a famous chemical laboratory.

New R-D-R process keeps Gulf fresh

Gulf's high-speed delivery service rushes fresh Gulf gas to the pumps. And that gas stays fresh longer, due to Gulf's exclusive R-D-R process . . . a process that actually delays deterioration.

So no matter where you buy Gulf gas . . . that R-D-R process guarantees you FRESH gas. Gas that has life . . . punch . . . power.

The season of flower shows is here again, and in spite of deluges of rain, there are some glorious flowers being exhibited. The Fox Chapel Garden Club opened the flower show season with a show yesterday afternoon in the Pittsburgh Field Club.

And the Village Garden Club of Sewickley is doing its part by planning a show for June 6 in the garage at Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker's Glen Osborne place, McKown lane.

The show will open that afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and continue until 9 o'clock in the evening. On the committee arranging the affair are Mrs. William Scaife, Mrs. William Henry, Mrs. Ralph Harbison, Mrs. Strickland Kneass, with Miss Martha Porter as chairman.

In Charge of Show

There'll be one class in which non-members may have entries—a class in white a ribbon will be awarded to the best arrangement of white flowers in a red glass container.

There'll be classes for roses, for acquilegia, which most of us call columbine; for delphinium, sweet peas, and other cut flowers.

Ribbons will be awarded for flower arrangement, too, an art in itself. Among the flower arrangements classes are ones for submerged bouquets and exhibits for porches and occasional tables.

Ribbon Awards

With so many famed Sewickley gardens to offer up their blooms for the show, garden enthusiasts will flock to Sewickley Tuesday.

The Kingsley House will have an exhibition and sale of products from the potter and arts-and-crafts departments, today, tomorrow and Saturday. The exhibit opened yesterday.

A dinner-dance June 10 will mark the opening of the new terrace being completed at the Allegheny Country Club. Arranging the affair are Mary Franklin Robinson, Mrs. Harry Darlington, Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Jr., and Mrs. Henry Clay Bughman.

Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club Garden Section Holds Outing at Treesdale

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The garden section, which comprises nearly one-fourth of the entire membership of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club, had a delightful outing yesterday. The women motored to the Mars Presbyterian Church, where luncheon was served by the church women and a business meeting was held. Later they visited Treesdale Manor, the J. C. Trees home, and spent the remainder of the afternoon wandering over the beautiful estate.

Ambitious plans for all sorts of interesting activities for the summer and next season were announced during the business session. These will begin with a garden party and exhibit on June 28, both afternoon and evening, at Mrs. Walter Fuller's home, "Wallingcrest," on the Washington road. A picnic at Mt. Lebanon Park, a bridge breakfast at Mrs. James S. Huey's home, a tour of home gardens, a plant exchange, a visit to Carnegie Museum, addresses by visiting authorities, and a garden clinic are included in the plans.

Mrs. S. A. Schreiner took office yesterday as chairman of the section, succeeding Mrs. H. F. Phillips, and announced that a new committee on civic planning has been established and will be headed by Mrs. Charles Goldthwaite, retiring president of the mother club.

Mrs. Charles A. Floto, in describing Treesdale, said 50,000 fruit trees and several hundred thousand ornamental trees are planted there; that 10 tons of honey were sold last year, that the average output of eggs is 200 dozen a day and that 25 families are engaged on the 10 farms, which cover more than 2,000 acres. These families have their own band of 35 instruments.

CYCLING HERALDS THE RETURN OF THE SHORT, DIVIDED SKIRT

BERMUDA may have started it. Or memories of a bicycle built for two. But back we go to the simple pleasures of proceeding under our own steam on wheels. In Greenwich, they have roller skating dances and the couples dart and swoop round and round the floor in ever widening circles or land dramatically and unexpectedly on the floor. Between intrepid bicyclists and enthusiastic roller-skaters, the pedestrian is rapidly becoming extinct.

THE FUN about sudden return to old ways is that they bring in their wake developments in clothes. These are a cross between the old and the new. They're bound to be useful and they're frequently picturesque in a gay nineties sort of way.

ON THE left you'll be entertained to see the post-war shortness of the skirt. It's white pique. Masses of fine plaits in the skirt make it look very young and nonchalant. The neck buttons up tight and businesslike, the little collar turns down over the bright blue cardigan. The whole effect is reminiscent of school days and is just right for those debutantes who roller skate with glorious abandon.

THE SHOES are carefully chosen for their uses. They are sturdy but with soles flexible enough to make them comfortable. One is white buck with brown at the bottom so you can clamp on your skates without marring it if you wish to use it for roller skating, too. The other is a mocassin type in two shades of leather, nicely handled.

As it removes ugly stain and tarnish—it foams into every tiny crevice and kills millions of germs that are the known cause of most tooth and gum troubles. Thus Kolynos gives RESULTS YOU CAN SEE. Cleaner, whiter teeth. Healthier looking gums. Give up incompetent ways of brushing and start using the Kolynos technique—a half-inch of this remarkable dental cream on a dry brush twice a day. RICH GIRL, BOY SECRETLY WED

NEW YORK, June 1.—(INS.)—Peggy Kent, schoolgirl daughter of Sidney R. Kent, Fox Films president, has been the secret bride of Clinton S. Dow, Jr., social registerite, for the past month, it was learned today.

Revelation of the marriage came about when investigation was begun of a rumor that Peggy and "Bud" Dow had eloped over the week-end and were married on Long Island.

At the office of Peggy's father, it was admitted that the youngsters had been married late in April in Washington, where the girl was attending a fashionable finishing school, but the spokesman for the elder Kent refused to say whether the marriage had his sanction.

The socially-registered Clinton S. Dows "know nothing" about the secret marriage a month ago of their son.

Whitaker also faces a three-year sentence from the Federal courts in Florida under the motor vehicle theft act. He has appealed the Florida conviction.

No reduction was made in Means' two-year sentence, which is in addition to a 15-year sentence from a previous trial.

STRONG COMEBACK BY PIRATES LIKELY

DON'T START TO lose faith in the Pirates because they are in a slump and their pennant lead has been whittled to a mere five points. True, they haven't looked overly impressive in winning only five of their last 12 games. In that time only three starting pitchers went the distance; Freddie Lindstrom, counted on to add considerable power to this year's attack, failed to hit safely in six of the 12 contests; 93 runners were left stranded on the bases; the infielders committed an unusual number of bobbles, and things in general were off color.

Freddie Lindstrom

But it can hardly be other than a temporary condition. It isn't at all likely that Lindstrom is going to stay as low as .271 in the batting table; that the best outfield in the country is going to be kept down to a combined hitting average of only .280, the mark of the Waner-Lindstrom-Waner trio today, or just seven points better than the club average; that the team is going to continue through the season with only one .300 hitter in Traynor with .348, or that the infield is going to keep on being so unsteady. All of these things will right themselves shortly. They're not natural.

It must not be forgotten, either, that it was an abnormal drive that carried the Bucs so far out in front at the start. They were playing ahead of themselves in winning 19 of their first 27 games for a percentage of .704. There can be no .700 club in a league as evenly balanced as the National. The Pirates had to slow up by the law of averages. And at that, their present percentage of .615, after all their slumping, may still be called a pennant gait. In eight of the last 13 National League races the pennant has been won with a mark lower than .615, and in one other campaign the winning figures were only .617, or just two points higher.

Don't get panicky about the Bucs. They're merely having one of the off spells that come to every club. They'll snap out of it soon, and the present experience may do them more good than harm by ridding them of overconfidence and making them realize that they've got a fight on their hands.

THE RECORD OF Tommy Bridges, Detroit pitcher, who on three occasions has missed breaking into the hall of no-hit fame by the margin of a single safety, shows how a hurler who looks great in spots may be mediocre at other times. Bridges is too erratic to be ranked with the superstars.

Though he has turned in two one-hit games this season, the Tiger twirler has pitched only three complete games since the American League race began. And he has started eight times. His only distance performances were the pair of one-hitters and an extra-inning game in which he was defeated. On five other occasions he was knocked out.

THE WORST UMPIRE-BAITERS in their playing days sometimes are the severest in their dealings with their players on the field when they turn to be arbiters. The season's most notable example is Polly McLarry.

When McLarry was playing first base in the Southern Association he was fined $675 in one season by umpires. Now he is umpiring in that circuit, and in his first week he chased three players off the lot, two of them umpires. Either he has made up his mind to get even with somebody, or he has discovered that there's a side to the question which he did not appreciate before.

AN ENGLISHMAN, William Rundle Hecker, headmaster of Wilson's School, Camberwell, London, has been studying sports in the United States. Here are his views on baseball: "An English crowd at a cricket game applauds politely by clapping, but at the baseball games that I have attended in the United States the entire crowd was yelling. The gentleman in the seat behind me at one game kept yelling in an extraordinary way. I tried to catch what he was saying, but it was an entirely new jargon to me. I could not understand a word of it. It was like a new language. The game itself also was extraordinarily interesting. Of course, I couldn't appreciate the fine points of it, but the players seemed to show such marvelous skill. It was this skill that impressed me most."

Joe Stripp

THE RARE VALUE of Pie Traynor is not confined to the Pirates. He may not know it, but he helps other clubs, too, because opposing third basemen use him as a model and improve themselves by trying to copy his style. Freddie Lindstrom used to admit that he learned a lot about playing third base by watching Traynor, and the latest is Joe Stripp, of the Dodgers.

While Brooklyn was playing here recently, Stripp was discussing Pepper Martin. He pronounced Pepper a

Simmons paced the outfielders with 26,303, the largest total for any position, with Ruth second with 24,236. Grove had piled up 25,164 votes to lead the pitchers. PIRATES LOSE SERIES FINAL TO BRUINS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirates today were in the middle of a two-day relaxation spell, but Manager Gibson will see to it that his "ball-gamers" do not get much further than shouting distance from the Oakland Orchard. The Buccaneer boss is somewhat put out over the last two performances of his club, and he should be. A pronounced spell of listless action fell upon the Pittsburghers yesterday when they took a 5 to 1 pasting at the hands of the Cubs and almost dropped out of first place.

There is an even chance that the Freebooters will be toppled off the top by the cocky Cardinals before the sun sets tonight. The Redbirds are in Chicago to challenge the Cubs, but the Bears have begun to act up a bit themselves, and they may claw the St. Louis flock, especially if Lonnie Warneke is able to strut his stuff on the slab. Should the Cards win they will displace the Buccos.

CUBS CROWD LEADERS

Before leaving for Chicago last night, one prominent member of the Cub entourage remarked:

"We'll knock those Cardinals off for you tomorrow."

Well, here's hoping; yet it might be out of order to be cheering a club which is only three and one-half games beneath the Pirates. That's the situation so far as the Buccos and Bruins are concerned, and Galli Curci Grimm appears to have his sharpshooters on edge for some big-time stuff.

One of the main afflictions which beset the Pirates is the absence of the base hit with runners on the sacks.

WHERE'S THE PEPPER?

Would you believe the Pirates have left 23 runners stranded in the last two games? It's a fact, mates; there were no less than 13 of the boys left on the runways in the final with the Cubs. Moreover, the Pittsburgh boys are not showing enough ginger, although that statement doesn't go for Pie Traynor and one or two others.

SPORTS CUT SHORT

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (AP.) — Ellsworth Vines, national singles champion, led a field of stars into the quarter-finals of the Dixie invitation tennis tournament here yesterday. Handicapped by lack of practice as a result of recent illness and complaining of a bad knee, Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, fought gamely through to a 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Perry Eastman, of New Orleans, for another of the quarter-final positions.

LOS ANGELES—(AP.)—Miss Mary Niccaro, 23, fiancee of Lester Spangler, Los Angeles automobile race driver, who was fatally injured in the Indianapolis speedway race is en route to Indianapolis to accompany the body to Spangler's former home in Brooks, Ind. Spangler and Miss Niccaro were to have been married in three weeks.

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP.)—Distribution of prize money to winners in the 500-mile automobile race here Memorial Day was withheld and the drivers' dinner called off when two protests were filed against decisions of officials as to the manner in which the cars finished. Third place, rather than fourth, was claimed for Chet Gardner, of Long Beach, Cal., and fifth place, instead of sixth, for Dave Evans, of Columbus, Ind.

DETROIT—(AP.)—The bout between Midget Wolgast, flyweight champion according to the New York Boxing Commission, and Willie Davies, Charleroi, Pa., scheduled for tomorrow night, has been indefinitely postponed. Davies notified Matchmaker Scotty Monteith of a prior engagement for that night which was not brought to light when the bout here was arranged.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP.)—Barney Berlinger, former University of Pennsylvania track star, tore a stomach muscle while practicing for the New York Athletic Club's meet saturday and probably will be out of action for the rest of the spring. Physicians said they hope to get Berlinger in shape for the nationals in Chicago, July 1.

NEW YORK—Big Bill Tilden today predicted the United States Davis Cup tennis team would not win the international trophy this year. He warned that either England or Australia would be extremely dangerous in the inter-zone final, and that Cochet and Brugnon would be able to keep the cup for France.

TITLE TAKEN BY EDGEWOOD

Edgewood has the Section III baseball title of the W. P. I. A. L. safely stowed away and may now look forward to meeting the Trinity High School team, of Washington, Pa., in the play-offs for the league title.

Edgewood won the Section III crown yesterday by defeating McKeesport, 7 to 6.

In the City League, Langley downed Carrick, 1 to 0, as McDonald turned in a two-hit performance. Peabody defated South, 7 to 1, and aLtimer walloped Washington, 8 to 3, in the junior division.

SCHOOL TENNIS TEAMS CLASH IN TITLE FRAY

MOUNT LEBANON OPPOSED BY SHADY SIDE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The crack Mount Lebanon High School net squad, surviving outfit of suburban Section II, is battling to retain possession of the Interscholastic Tennis Conference crown and the University of Pittsburgh trophy symbolic thereof in the title combat with Shady Side Academy, victor in suburban Section I, on the Pitt rectangles this afternoon.

The Lebanonians, favored to continue atop the secondary school pack, blanked Wilkinsburg, suburban Section III premier, 5-0, in intersectional elimination fray yesterday, while the Shady Siders sprang a surprise to eliminate Taylor Allderdice, twice captor of City laurels, 3-2.

VETERANS WIN

SHADY SIDE, 3; ALLDERDICE, 2.

Singles—Arensberg, Shady Side, defeated W. Miller, Allderdice, 6-1, 8-6; Lynch, Shady Side, defeated Greenberg, Allerdice, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1; A. Miller, Shady Side, defeated Solow, Allderdice, 6-1, 6-3.

Doubles—Miller and Greenberg, Allerdice, defeated Arensberg and Sunstein, Shady Side, 6-3, 7-9, 10-8; Hurst and Goodman, Allderdice, defeated A. Miller and Lynch, Shady Side, 6-2, 6-1.

MT. LEBANON, 5; WILKINSBURG, 0.

Singles—Ackerman defeated Merchant, 6-1, 6-4; Bald defeated Barr, 6-1, 6-0; Grier defeated McLaughlin, 6-1, 6-1.

Doubles—Bald and Fay defeated Merchant and Barr, 6-1, 6-3; DeJohn and Wick defeated McLaughlin and Bodycombe, 6-4, 6-1.

COLLEGE PLAY OPENS

Meanwhile at Grove City today, Tri-State Conference varsity court representatives began action for singles and doubles honors of the Class B college loop. Competition will continue until the end of the week, with Grove City, Geneva, Westminster, Thiel, Waynesburg and Bethany performers slated to contest.

Howdy Campbell, of College Hill, announces that the Beaver Valley Tennis League, inaugurated with eight squads a twelve-month ago, has been enlarged to a 10-team circuit and will open play the day after tomorrow. Campbell further advises that, through error, the schedule already released was given out backwards, so to speak, in that all the aggregations listed as playing abroad on given dates are actually billed to cavort at home and vica versa. The corrected card follows:

June 3—Koppel-Ellwood at Ambridge, Beaver at B. F. Union Drawn; Monaca at College Hill, Dravo at B. F. Towne Club, Freedom-Rochester at Aliquippa.

June 24—Monaca at Ambridge, Beaver at Towne Club, College Hill at Freedom-Rochester, Aliquippa at Dravo, Union Drawn at Koppel-Ellwood.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, June 1.—I kind of lost track of the exact figures, but it must have been back in Grover Cleveland's administration when the Yanks took their last shutout. On second thought, I can look it up in the almanac under "Outstanding Events in World History" and make soure.

And here, by golly, it is: The last time the Yankees were blanked was August 2, 1931. That was about 250 games ago. And, to make it more of a miracle, the Red Sox shut 'em out.

Talk about giving credit to Gandhi for fasting from goat's milk for three weeks: The Yanks have got along without eggs for almost two years, and they don't even look weak.

OAKMONT TEAM GOLF LEADER

By TOM BIRKS

That the Allegheny and Oakmont Country Club teams are going to battle it out once more for the championship of Section I in the women's team matches, is the concensus of opinion as a result of the second week's matches, played yesterday at the Edgewood Country Club.

Both Allegheny, the defending champion, and Oakmont, which, previous to last year, had a monopoly on the title, have won both their matches to date. Oakmont has 14 points and Allegheny 13.

The powerful Hulton team defeated the Pittsburgh Field Club yesterday, 5 to 3, and Allegheny won over Stanton Heights, 7-1.

Westmoreland took a beating from Butler, 7 to 1, and Edgewood downed Fox Chapel, 5 to 3.

Shannopin's crack team of Mrs. Carl Van der Voort and Mrs. W. J. Lacock took three points to start Shannopin to victory over South Hills, 6 to 3, and Longue Vue finished strong to defeat St. Clair, 6 to 3.

Kiski won permanent possession of the Lott Interscholastic golf trophy yesterday afternoon at the Pittsburgh Field Club, defeating Turtle Creek, 10½ to 7½. The Saltsburg boys have won the trophy three years in succession.

Taylor Allderdice School and Peabody are fighting it out over the Alcoma Country Club links this afternoon for the runner-up position in Section I. The winner will play Turtle Creek for the consolation prize.

CITY LEAGUE RIVALS MEET

Now that the North Siders are out of the City League, fans will see seven clubs all fighting for the pennant, without a weak sister present.

Three games are carded for this evening, and it would take a good prognosticator to pick the winners. The Cochrans travel to West Field, Homestead, to meet the Whitaker outfit.

Books, the defending champions, will tackle the J. L. Thomas nine, and the third game finds Bill Dalzell taking his Homewood club to Brentwood to meet the Gillespies.

Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania challenges the oil industry with

A MOTOR FUEL THAT Guarantees SMOOTHER PERFORMANCE

TOMORROW you will have a chance to test for yourself a new motor fuel development perfected and endorsed by the world's largest oil organization • No doubt you are tired of the "Super" claims that are making gasoline advertising so hard to believe. Exaggerated descriptions of quick-starting, anti-knock, power, pick-up, economy • The Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania makes no claims for Essolene. We merely state that we have spent millions to make a better fuel at regular price than has yet been made for the modern motor. We stand squarely back of Essolene as such a fuel. We make this statement with full knowledge of our responsibility to the public, as the leader in the oil industry • Try Essolene tomorrow. It will speak for itself—and you can furnish your own superlatives • Essolene will be sold at all Esso Stations at regular gasoline price and is Colored Orange to Prevent Substitution

• Essolene, Esso, and Essolube—the 5-Star Motor Oil, are sold at Esso Stations and Dealers owned, operated or supplied by the following companies: the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania, the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, and the Colonial Beacon Oil Company, Incorporated.

TWO RETURN BOUTS AT ARENA TONIGHT

FOUR 10-ROUND BATTLES ON PROGRAM

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Jack December vs. Cliff La Rue and Chuck Woods vs. Young Kid McCoy, 10 rounds each, Detroit.

It is bargain night because he is giving his customers four 10-round bouts for the price of a regular show.

Eddie Koppy

It is bargain night, furthermore, because Raymond considers all of his bouts of equal importance and will have the boxers pull slips out of a hat at weighing-in time this afternoon to determine their respective positions on the card.

Two return bouts are on the bill, between Billy Holt and Tiger Joe Randall, local Negro welterweight rivals, and between the Alabama Kid, Negro middleweight, of Dover, O., and Joe Rugguzzoni, of Detroit. Holt upset the dope by winning the decision over Randall in a bout in the Hill Arena, winter before last, while the Alabama Kid recently won over Rugguzzoni at the Arena, with the fans jeering the decision.

Two out-of-town lightweights make their local debut in the two other 10-rounders, Eddie Koppy, of Detroit, against Charley Baxter and Jackie Hoster, of Columbus, O., against Eddie Zivic. Koppy recently won on a foul over Tracey Cox, of Indianapolis, who boxed Eddie (Kid) Wolfe in the main bout at the North Braddock Bowl last night.

Between Rounds

Buddy McArthur was a visitor in his former home town, McKeesport, over Memorial Day. He boxes Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight champion, in a non-title bout in Clarksburg, W. Va., tomorrow night. He now weighs 182 pounds.

Seaman Watson, the British featherweight champion, has pulled out of his bout with Mose Butch at Columbus, O., next Monday night, claiming a cut eye, but he is matched with Tommy Paul in Buffalo the following Friday. Paul meanwhile meets Jackie Wilson in their return bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Monday night.

Ted Yarosz makes his second start as a middleweight against Sammy Slaughter, Terre Haute Negro puncher, in one of the all-star bouts on a card at the Cleveland Stadium, June 15. Johnny Risko meets Patsy Perroni in the main event.

Al Sands announces his second annual diamond studded belt amateur boxing tournament to be held in his outdoor arena in Uniontown, June 19, 20, 21. The winner in each class will receive a diamond studded gold belt and the runner-up a diamond studded silver belt. Entry blanks will be ready at A. A. U. headquarters this week.

Charley Harvey, manager of Steve Hamas and Seaman Watson, writes from New York that Hamas, who meets Johnny Risko at the North Braddock Bowl, Thursday night of next week, may accompany Watson to England in July to box Jack Peterson, the British heavyweight champion. Watson is virtually matched for a return bout with Kid Chocolate in London. Hamas also meets Tommy Loughran again at the Polo Grounds in New York on June 21.

Plans to hold a benefit professional boxing show for Joey Speigal, who is in the Uniontown Hospital with a broken back, have not been working out and it is likely a new committee will be formed within a few days to do the job in the proper manner. The show originally was set for next Wednesday night, but now may be held on June 15.

Fight Results

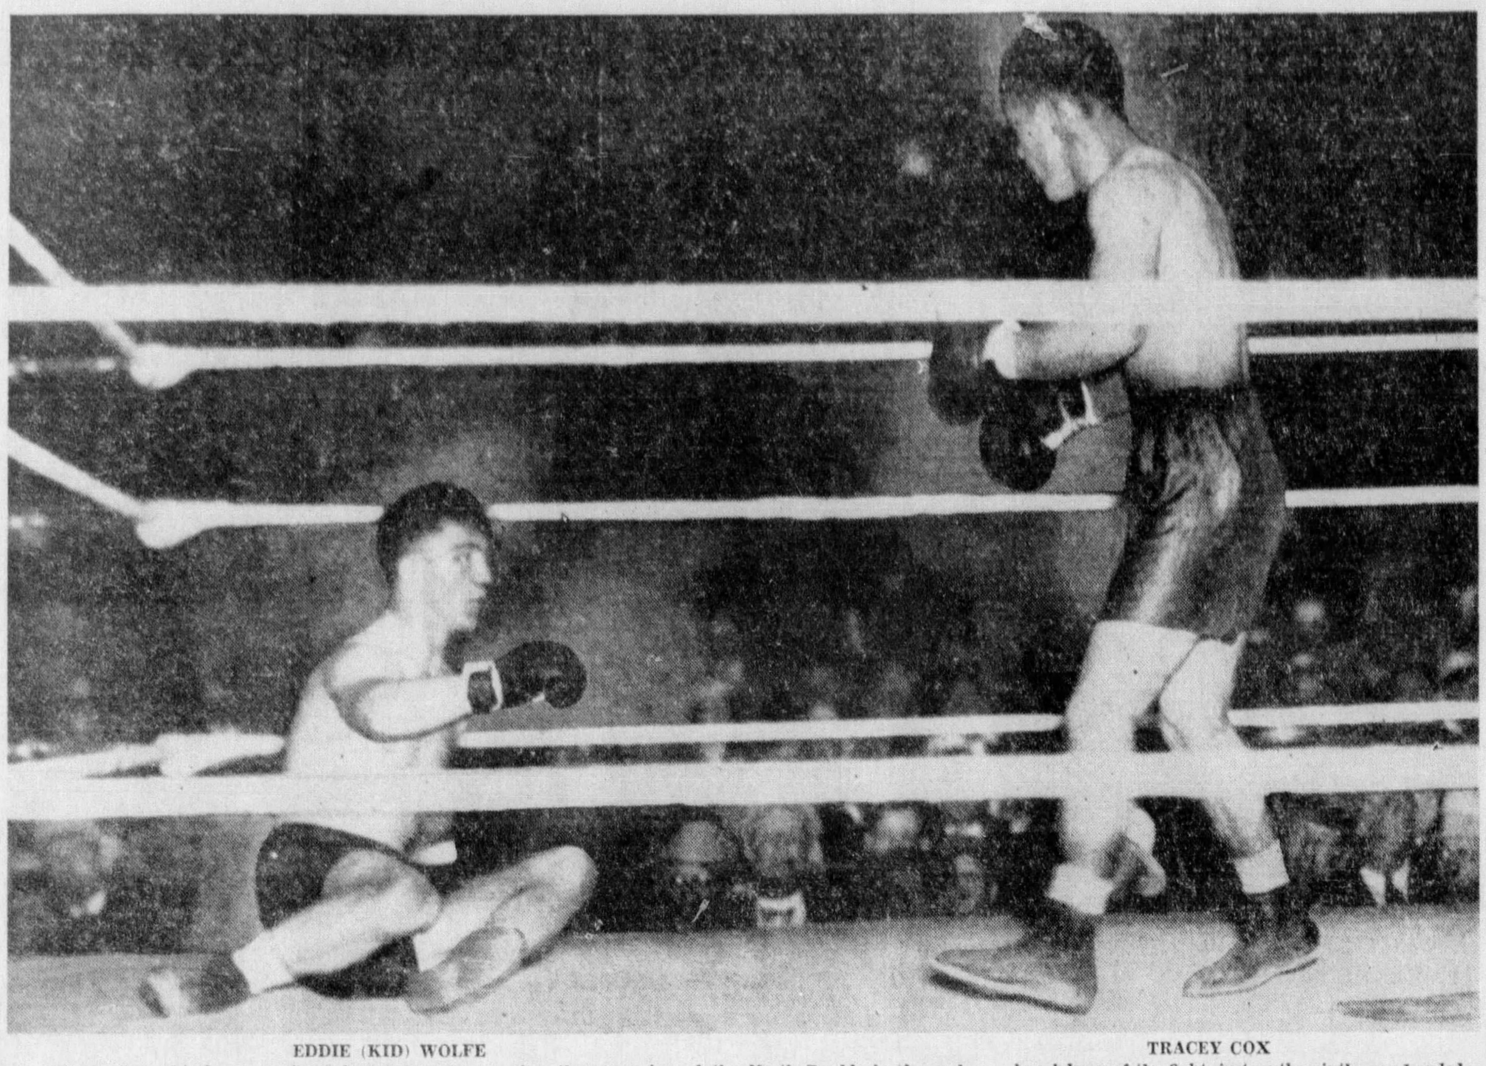
SHORTSTOP OF THE CUBS STRUCK WITH PITCHED BALL

What for a time appeared to be a serious accident occurred at Forbes Field yesterday when Bill Jurges, of the Cubs, was felled by one of Steve Swetonic's pitches. However, he recovered, took his base and subsequently scored, helping his team to win, 5-1. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture of the incident.

Only Knockdown as Eddie Wolfe Defeated Tracey Cox



EDDIE (KID) WOLFE

LENORE KIGHT SETS RECORD

By JESS CARVER

One of these fine days, or nights, Miss Lenore Kight is going to participate in a swimming meet in which she will not set a new record or win a new title. That will be news.

The sparkling Homestead lass, who holds a flock of national titles and lays just claim to almost as many world records, shattered the 50-yard senior Allegheny Mountain Association free-style record last night in the I. K. S. pool, covering the distance in 29 seconds. The mark not only established a new A. M. A. record, but bettered by one-fifth of a second the A. A. U. mark, set in 1922 by Eleanor Smith, of Columbus, O.

Trailing Miss Kight in the final was Emma Martin, of the Coyne A. C., with Louise Clark, a teammate of the victor, third. Miss Kight equaled the A. A. U. record in her trial heat.

Sharing the record-breaking honors for the evening was Katherine Gibbons, of the Coyne A. C., who won the 100-yard back stroke title in the fine time of 1:21. The old record, 1:25 3-5, was held by Johanna Gorman, of the Carnegie Library Club, of Homestead, and established a year ago.

In other title events last night, Michael Brodi, of the Duquesne Library, won the 300-yard senior individual medley championship in 3:56 2-5; Betty Fagan, of the Carnegie Library Club, captured the junior women's 100-yard breast stroke crown in 1:36 1-5; the Carnegie Library No. 1 team, of Addlesberg, Lindberg and Lelake, took down the 300-yard junior medley relay laurel in 3:31, and Russ Lindberg annexed the junior individual medley crown for 200 yards in 4:14 4-5.

DOCTOR SCORES ACE

The second hole in 1 of the week was scored yesterday at South Hills when Dr. L. W. Pumphrey sank his tee shot on the No. 4 hole. John Graham and Casey Jones witnessed the shot.

BAER FAVORS JACK AS REF

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 1. (AP.)—Max Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, are all in favor of the suggestion that Promoter Jack Dempsey be appointed to referee the Californian's 15-round battle with Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium June 8, even though the suggestion came from the rival camp. Hoffman said:

"It really makes no difference to me who referees, for all he'll have to be able to do is count up to 10."

SCHMELING FIT

LAKE SWANNANOA, N. J., June 1.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling plans only four more workouts in his preparation for his bout with Max Baer at the Yankee Stadium, June 8. The former champion will box today, Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday, his manager, Joe Jacobs, announced. He probably will leave for New York next Wednesday.

Sports Vignettes

Don Cook, of the University of Washington, beat out Helmut Buse, of Carnegie Tech, for first prize in the shootoff of their tie for the individual championship in the annual William Randolph Hearst National R. O. T. C. rifle competition, according to word just received from headquarters . . . Cook received credit for 196 points against 190 for Buse in the shootoff.

Penn State alumni in Western Pennsylvania are rallying for the appearance of Steve Hamas, former Nittany Lion gridder, against Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, in the main bout at the North Braddock Bowl next Wednesday night . . . They are 1,200 strong and hope to turn out a large rooting delegation . . . Eddie Flynn, of the Pittsburgher Hotel, who was Hamas' roomie at State, is plugging the fight for all he's worth.

The Indianapolis Speedway race this year cost five lives, all told, including the two fatalities in the trials last Sunday, and there naturally is a great to-do about the grim brutality of the 500-mile grind. . . . However, it will quiet down, and next year there'll be another 100,000 of the morbidly curious on hand to look for more sensational spills . . . Your automobile racing driver is an out-and-out fatalist . . . When that driver and his mechanic were killed trying to qualify on Sunday, Fred Frame, last year's winner, who was hoping to repeat, commented: "A lot of people who were out for a Sunday drive have wound up the same way." Kin Hubbard, the Hoosier sage, once philosophically remarked: "There ain't no such thing as an ex-automobile racer" . . . Which is why they have to be fatalists.

Ever since he knocked Lew Tendler goggle-eyed with a left hook for the Philadelphian's only knockout defeat, Jack Zivic, former local ring star, has been telling the world that a well-placed left hook beats a right hand lead in fighting southpaws, and it remained for Jimmy McLarnin to prove his point by dropping Young Corbett with a left hook and then finishing him in the first round of their bout for the world welterweight title in Los Angeles the other night.

Curley Wolk, by the way, comes up with the report that Jackie Lightning, a former local boxer, hero of the "Who Kicked Johnny Kirk?" incident at the Expo some years ago and now a man about town here, boxed McLarnin in California when he invaded the Coast along with Johnny Ray back in 1924 . . . McLarnin was just starting out as a bantamweight, and Jackie was only a flyweight, with two badly bruised, if not broken, ribs . . . The bout went the limit of four rounds, with McLarnin winning the decision.—HARRY KECK.

Grays Beaten, 13-1; Dormont Club Wins

Dormont and the Cochrans turned in triumphs in the City Baseball League last evening. The Dormonters defeated Homewood, 5 to 2, while the Cochrans, launching a 15-hit attack, defeated the J. L. Thomas nine, 11 to 6.

The Crawfords found the Homestead Grays easy in the third game of their series, played at Greenlee Field under the lights, winning, 13 to 1. Paige limited the Grays to a trio of hits, while the Crawfords slugged out 17. The victory gave the Crawfords a 2-1 edge in the series.

real spark plug, but predicted he would smash himself up again dashing around so wildly. Joe then confessed that he had once had the same fault and gave Traynor the credit for his cure.

"I USED TO play that same kind of ball at third base for the Reds," Stripp said. "And I was out of the game with injuries half of the time, so I figure it does the club harm instead of good. The way that guy Martin dives! You watch. He will go bang sooner or later, and then where will that Cardinal infield be again?

"You know what changed me? Why, just watching that fellow out there," Stripp pointed to Traynor. "Nothing spectacular about him, is there? He doesn't even throw hard, because he gets that ball away faster than anybody else, and because he has the runners figured out, and how much time he has to make a play. Yeah, he's been getting along all right at third base for a few years now, and I'm a whole lot better from having studied him."

WHEN THE METRIC system of measurement in college track meets was opposed by the overwhelming vote of 22 to 3 at the meeting of the Association of College Track Coaches of America on the eve of the I. C. 4-A games in Cambridge, the three who voted in favor of the system were Jaako Mikkola, of Harvard, Jack Magee, of Bowdoin, and Mike Ryan, of Colby. Frank Kanaly, of Yale, maintained neutrality. Magee and Ryan had voted for the measure when it was adopted during the winter by the college body and the A. A. U. Mikkola naturally was in favor of it because he got his early athletic training in Finland, where the metric system is used. Eddie Farrell, president of the coaches' association and head coach at Harvard, pleaded for a compromise, suggesting that the metric system be upheld for regular use, but at distances in common with the yards and feet, such as having the metric equivalent of 100 yards, so that the distance of the century dash still would be 100 yards, but would be put into meters. This, however, was not taken up, and the coaches went on record as opposing the whole system.

YOU HAVEN'T HEARD much about that proposed tennis match between Helen Wills Moody and Suzanne Lenglen since the story first broke. And the chances are you've heard the last of it. Such a match makes a fine yarn, but no one is likely ever to see it.

The old amateur-pro business, dynamite in tennis, is again the obstacle. The haste with which the U. S. L. T. A. back-pedaled on the open tournament in this country after certain interests objected shows that the powers never will sanction a meeting of Mrs. Moody with Mlle. Langlen, who is now on the pro list. The stand that amateur-pro competition is against the best principles of tennis is the bunk, but at any rate the ba.. are up, and they're not going to be lowered.

ONE OF THE former boxing stars at Penn State is rated among the college greats of all time by so good an authority as Spike Webb, boxing instructor at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. The Nittany gloveman so honored is Al Lewis, who boxed for the Lions at 145 pounds.

Spike Webb

Webb, who became instructor at the Naval Academy after the World War, also has coached the United States boxing teams for competition in the Olympic Games. He has been in close touch with college boxing throughout the country for many years and is considered about the best posted man in the country on the subject.

IN SELECTING HIS all-time all-college ring team, Webb does not pick any boxer representing a school west of the Alleghenies. He names two of his own Navy performers and two from Syracuse. No other institution gets more than one place on the team. Eight boxers are selected. Seven are from the East and the other from the South. Here is Webb's idea of the greatest team that it would have been possible to put together from the ranks of the college boxers of all time: 115 pounds, Rich Collins, of Navy; 125 pounds, Al Wertheimer, of Syracuse; 135 pounds, Bobby Goldstein, of Virginia; 145 pounds, Al Lewis, of Penn State; 155 pounds; Joe Moran, of Syracuse; 165 pounds, Harry Henderson, of Navy; 175 pounds, Eddie Eagan, of Yale; unlimited, or heavyweight, Al Lassman, of New York University.

WOLFE WHIPS TRACEY COX

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Tracey Cox, Indianapolis lightweight puncher, ran true to type last night and dropped the unanimous decision to Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, in the 10-round main bout of the opening show of the season in the North Braddock Bowl. A small, chilled crowd sat in on the return of the sport to the former Meyers Bowl.

Cox ran true to type in that he did more holding and tincanning than he did fighting. Wolfe went to work on his opponent's weak spot, infighting, right from the start, and hammered away to his heart's content, while the referee had to warn Cox repeatedly for grabbing and prolonging clinches. Finally, in the closing rounds, Cox began to fight back a bit in the clinches, in self-defense, but he couldn't hold his own.

EYES ARE CUT

Cox had his right eye slightly cut in the second round, and the left followed suit in the third, while Wolfe's right eye was cut in the third. There was no excitement until Cox, after stalling throughout the ninth round, hauled off and landed a right and dropped Wolfe for no count as the bell ended the session. In the tenth he put on a rally and hurt Wolfe with a left to the jaw, but Wolfe came back and was belting him around the ring and had him hunting cover as the fight ended.

The semi-final also was one-sided, with Lou Jallos, Homestead lightweight, soaking up a bad beating all of the way throughout eight rounds from Pete Gullota, of New York, and having no chance whatsoever.

Carl Montebano, Braddock middleweight, bested Red Bush, of Cumberland, in the second six-rounder, piling up his margin in the last two rounds, during which Bush bled copiously from the nose.

M'VEY STOPS BAKER

Sunny Jim McVey, Negro heavyweight of the Hill, scored the only knockout of the night when he stretched Gene Baker, of Johnstown, with the first punch of the second round of the opener, a left hook to the jaw, to continue his string of knockout wins.

The promoter and matchmaker, Joe Mazer and Jules Beck, were presented a floral piece in the ring before the main bout by American Legion Post No. 99, of Braddock, North Braddock and Rankin.

day; that's why so many were kept away from the home dish. Root had a peach of a curve and a dandy fast ball and he gave the Pirates both barrels in the crises.

Steve Swetonic was unfortunate in that he was given miserable support. The Cubs won a big edge at the outset. Steve walked English who swiped second in a jiffy and continued to third when Grace threw wide at second. A long fly scored him.

A double play that missed fire jammed up Steve in the fourth. Hendrick singled with one out. Hartnett hit a double play ball to Traynor who threw low to second, Hendrick taking third. Jurges was hit in the head to fill the sacks. The kid shortstop was not badly hurt. Swetonic made Root hit a foul to Traynor in the jam, but he walked English and Bill Herman doubled to center to score two more Cubs. Hendrick's triple in the eighth led to another run. The Pirates tallied their lone run in the eighth on a walk and two singles.

Forbes Field will be the scene of a doubleheader between the Pirates and Reds Saturday afternoon.

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion.

Many people have wondered why it is that American professionals and amateurs score in extremely low figures in the major championships in this country, whereas abroad in the important competitions scoring for the most part is on the high side.

There have been occasions such as that of Gene Sarazen a year ago, when he won the British open championship in very low figures on a hard golf course, and, of course, another situation is the wonderful four rounds played by Bobby Jones at St. Andrew's a few years back when his total for the 72 holes was 285. However, there is no question of a doubt in my mind but that it is easier to score low in this country than it is abroad.

Francis Ouimet

My reasons for thinking this are these—first of all, in this country on courses where championships are played, the trapping is particularly severe, especially around the putting greens. The average player, when he is approaching a green studded with traps, becomes horror stricken and panicky, and usually lands in one or two of them before he completes the hole. The fact that the trap might be 150 yards from his ball means nothing to him. It is there and he must go into it.

TRAP RANGE FINDER

This is the frame of mind the good player gets himself in. He has driven 250 yards down the middle, and a big trap guarding the green is just exactly 160 yards from where his ball rests. He plays under these conditions an easy No. 4 iron. He knows that he hits his iron accurately and is going to get the required distance, and, therefore, the trap will not bother him. In other words, the important feature of such a point of view is this—the good player knows almost to the foot just how far he has to go, because his eye very rapidly gives him the distance between his ball and the trap, and that trap really serves as a range finder.

Next, our greens are kept well watered so that long or short iron shots striking the green usually will hold.

These two things make it possible for the player, provided he is hitting his ball well, to score low.

HARD TO GAUGE DISTANCE

In Great Britain on the representative English or Scottish courses, greens are not so well trapped, and, as at St. Andrews, the ground is treacherous and tricky. Good shots are apt to end up very badly, although in the main good shots receive their just award. However, owing to the fact that the greens are not well spotted by sand traps, the player has to do a great deal of estimating of distances without assistance of any kind, and therefore it is more difficult for him to guage distances than it would be if traps had to be negotiated in front of greens.

Oftentimes you will notice in a medal round play that the player is putting very poorly, and that he took three putts on six or seven greens. If you could but analyze his golf or watch him play, the chances are nine times out of 10 you would find his iron shots were just stopping on the edges of the greens and leaving him very long approach putts which he was not placing very close. Naturally it is easier to get down in 2 from 20 feet than it is to get down in 2 from 50 or 60 feet.

EXPERTS IN ACCORD

I should say, in summing up scoring conditions difficulties, that low scoring is apt to be much more frequent on tightly-trapped courses than it is on those with but few hazards surrounding the green. I am not alone in this point of view, I am sure, because I know that Gene Sarazen and Bobby Jones and Hagen are of the same mind.

STOCK MARKET PRICES RULE FIRM

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP.)—The financial markets stepped into the new month with a generally firm trend today although scattered profit-taking cobble stones tended to impede the speedy progress in some sections.

While business and industrial factors continued to present a bright appearance, one of the most heartening was another advance in spot copper to 8 cents a pound to the highest level since 1931. Other commodities were slightly mixed, however. Wheat and corn sagged a bit and cotton was slightly lower. Bonds moved irregularly.

Most equity groups followed a rather narrow range, but the metals responded to copper's revival with advances of around 1 to 3 points.

As copper advanced, price increases in gasoline were announced in some eastern centers. The improvement in the petroleum sector was attributed partly to indications of success in curtailment of operations and to the belief, in some quarters, that governmental regulation may redound to the benefit of the industry as a whole. Reports to the American Petroleum Institute for the week ended May 27, indicated a decline of some 95,000 barrels in the total storage of motor fuels.

Although some brokers felt the market was due for a reaction, the resistance shown by leading shares was a matter of optimistic comment. Inflationary prospects, it is pointed out, are still an important spur, but at the same time trade indices continue to point upward with a degree of vigor that is much more than seasonal. This point has been particularly true of freight car loadings and electric power output.

The reported desire of President Roosevelt to postpone general reorganization of the government for the present, and his acceptance of the Senate proposal to modify the railroad bill against undue injuries caused by readjustments, were received with interest by the financial district. In some quarters it was believed that, with considerable immediate labor eliminated by these changes, Congress probably could adjourn around the middle of this month.

CROP OUTLOOK HURTS GRAINS

CHICAGO, June 1.—Material setbacks in grain values took place early today.

Belief was general that noon private crop estimates would prove larger than last month's official forecast. For at least the time being, inflation possibilities were ignored. Opening ¾ to 1⅜ down, wheat later held near the initial range. Corn started at ½ to 1⅛ decline, and subsequently sagged further.

Expectations that June unofficial domestic wheat crop figures would prove bearish were fulfilled.

Fractional rallies in wheat prices followed announcement of the June crop summaries, but buying lacked steam. Corn and oats prices took their cue from wheat action.

Provisions went lower with grains.

STOCK BUYING PITFALLS ARE POINTED OUT

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, June 1.—In these days of wild speculation, with the public running away with the market, and some prices fantastically high, it is desirable that those who are buying stocks be advised of the pitfalls and dangers.

One of the first points to settle is whether you really want to "invest," or whether you want to "speculate."

If you want to invest, you will be interested in safety of principal and in the yield you receive in the shape of dividends. You will have to study the earnings and financial position of the company, and you will consider the dividend paid, whether it is amply earned, and the record of dividend payments.

But if you are frankly desirous of speculating, you will be chiefly interested in the possibilities of a rise in the price of the stock. It will make little difference to you whether it pays dividends or not. In fact, non-dividend payers are more apt to have big rises than the others.

PREPARE FOR RISKS

Don't fool yourself. If you are going to speculate, you must be prepared to run speculative risks, and protect yourself accordingly.

One of the most common speculative errors is to overtrade. The speculator usually gets greedy and buys more than he can wisely handle. He puts himself in a position where just the usual fluctuations in the market force him to take losses. Above all, he gets in a position in which he is on edge and worried, so that his judgment is affected.

Speculators are apt to "pyramid." That is, when they get a profit they do not take it, but proceed to extend their commitments. The more they make on paper, the more they buy. This is extremely dangerous. It is one of the surest ways to get overextended.

SHOULD TAKE PROFITS

To avoid these errors the wise course is to (1) buy less than you can, (2) take profits when you get them, and (3) do not let your losses run.

If you figure that you can buy 100 shares, start in with only 50. You will feel calmer and use better judgment. You will be less likely to get strained.

If you get a couple of points profit, you should be quick to take it. This is on the assumption that you are speculating and that you are not able to watch the tape all day.

It is a good rule always to take any profits on the big active days when the tape is very late and stocks seem to be soaring.

TAKE LOSSES, TOO

On the other hand, do not hesitate to take losses. This is one reason for avoiding making overextended trading commitments. As a trader, you must be prepared to get out of unpromising situations quickly, and try again. If you start in a small way, you can do this.

Personally, I think that in a market like this the average man may well place "stop-loss orders" under his stocks. If you get a profit and have reason to expect further gains you can protect yourself by putting in an order to sell at a couple of points under the market, and can raise this limit if the stock goes higher.

The best time to buy stocks is when they are weak, and the best time to sell is when they are strong.

Forbes

Turns Rural Reporter and Gives Results

—By B. C. FORBES—

WHEN THE returns are all in, May promises to prove the best month since 1931.

In not a few lines it will turn out to be the banner month since 1930.

And June prospects are equally inspiring.

Mr. Forbes

I HAVE been spending several days away from the haunts of finance, meeting and talking with all classes, including country folks. Here is a summary of the views commonly expressed:

Things are better.

People are buying more.

Travel is increasing.

There is more spending for recreation and amusement.

Some progress is now being made in paying off old bills.

Farmers are less disheartened, thanks to higher prices for most of their products.

Almost every factory has increased either working hours or working forces, many both.

Interest in the security markets has revived. People who, badly frightened, hurriedly sold stocks and bonds when quotations were tragically low, are now either contemplating rebuying or are actually rebuying.

"I'm not afraid of Roosevelt," is heard extremely frequently. There is much discussion of inflation prospects and dangers by the more intelligent, but the predominating verdict is:

"Roosevelt won't run wild."

Among the rank and file there is uncompromising antipathy to making further sacrifices on behalf of "foreigners." Almost every American taxpayer, little and big, feels he is already unduly burdened; therefore, he has no desire to act the part of Santa Claus to nations who balk at paying what they owe our government, us.

Faith that a new day is dawning is extraordinarily widespread among ordinary folks. They accord President Roosevelt almost entire credit.

One conviction created by talks with inhabitants of agricultural and small-city communities is that there has arisen implicit, not to say pathetic, faith that the government will in very truth bring about, for them, a new deal, a less worrisome life, a lightening of their loads, abolition of a large part of their tax burdens.

Rural folks are counting upon profitable prices for their products. Wage-earners are counting upon getting a comfortable wage for shorter hours than they were compelled to work in the past—and, by and by, a pension.

WHILE ON this reportorial tour, I made it my business to enter many rustic stores and make small purchases. Modern salesmanship, to say nothing of high-pressure salesmanship, has not contaminated them!

Some of the merchants conveyed the impression that they regarded you as an intruder, a nuisance, an interrupter of apparently neighborly conversations. In one place, where I wanted to buy fishing hooks, the two men each tried to wish me on the other.

Their attitude reminded me of the old New England shopkeeper who stopped ordering a certain kind of merchandise because people bought it up so quickly he couldn't keep it in stock.

THAT AMERICA is entering an era of increasing social legislation cannot be doubted.

It is to be hoped that initiative, enterprise, expansion by entrepreneurs will not be discouraged, and that the bill will not ultimately prove beyond the capacity of the national purse.

WALL STREET ECONOMIST CITES GAIN

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 1.—In assaying the quality of the present day optimists, it seem fair to inquire what their views were in the days preceding the panic of October, 1929.

Mr. Rukeyser

Walter W. Price, veteran of 50 years in Wall street, whose cheerful book entitled, "We Have Recovered Before!" has just been published, spoke on the same platform as this writer at a meeting at the Park Lane in New York many months before the panic. Was he then whooping it up for the new era? On the contrary, he was sagely pointing out that, though most upward surges start from sound promises, they have a tendency to overdo themselves and to get into highly dangerous ground.

That observer, who sensed the storm signals in time, now sees signs which warrant hopefulness.

After comparing the present depressions with the major depressions of the last century, namely, 1837, 1857, 1873 and 1893, Mr. Price points out:

"In 1884, at the time of the Grant and Ward panic, I was a runner in the Bank of New York. In the 50 years that have since elapsed, I have realized that, just as in great eras of prosperity, similar to that which this country experienced for the three years prior to 1930, optimism knows no limit, so, in times such as those through which we are now passing, there has always developed a state of mental gloom, which has reflected a belief on the part of many people, that what now exists is bound to be permanent.

"The fallacy of both assumptions will be clearly demonstrated to anyone who will take the trouble to study not only the financial history of this country, but the financial history of the world."

In considering the effect of the new open market operation of the Federal Reserve System, too much stress should not be laid on comparison with last year's adventure. The results depend largely on the prevailing phychology. To the extent that there is a belief that higher prices are in sight or that other avenues for profit may be opening, there is more likely to be an actual usage of new credit proffered. Credit, of course, does not actually come into being until there is a meeting of the minds between the borrower and the lender.

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Gentlemen:

Confirming my 'phone conversation of yesterday with you regarding the results I received from an ad in your paper, may I say that I have advertised in every other Pittsburgh paper and have never obtained the satisfaction which the Sun-Tele has afforded me.

To enter into detail concerning the results, I shall further state that fifty-four calls were received in answer to the advertisement; of these prospects I will venture to say that forty would have purchased the car advertised had it not been sold early in the morning. Calls were received from almost every surrounding town, including Butler and Greensburg—Mount Lebanon, Bellevue and Carrick.

I am so very much pleased with the results I have received from your paper that I should like to be able to let everyone know of the satisfaction received from the two-line ad which I placed in your Sunday's paper.

From this time on, the Sun-Telegraph is my paper.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) William W. Beacom

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

CHAPTER XIV.

It was clear white moonlight when a boy announced that the cargo was loaded, and we returned to the schooner. The foredeck was crowded. There were a number of bags of copra and an amazing assortment of household furniture which Axel was taking into the jungle with him. In addition, there were his three boys, two marys, and two brown pickaninnies, a couple of dogs, a white cockatoo, a flock of chickens, and several cases of tinned foods. One of the marys was obviously Axel's own. She was a bright-eyed wench, and pretty. Watson told me that she was being loaned to me for the passage, and that she would sleep in the vacant bunk in my cabin. While I was not averse to having her, I strongly suspected that her master had been solicitous of me because he wanted to know that she was not philandering about with the crew when he wasnt' watching her.

The Bonta's engine started up again, making the boat shiver incessantly. Sitting out there alone on the absurd little deck, undeniably lonesome for Rabaul and its associations, but nevertheless conscious that it was a very good and blessed world where trade winds blew so softly, and where one might follow a path of moonlight out to strange islands, I had a surprise. Over the top of the cabin, which formed a sort of upper deck, leaned the head and shoulders of Skipper Watson. He asked me if he might come down and sit with me for a while, and I replied, "You bet!" So he flung a leg over the cabin and slid down.

Once in a great while you see a man who is completely in his environment: on this little, cramped schooner, where he was nevertheless as free as the restless trades, this man was happy and transformed. It was not altogether the moonlight that softened the lines in his face as he pulled contentedly at his pipe. He seated himself precariously on the narrow edge that ran around the deck, his legs stretched out along it. In the two hours that followed I caught a glimpse of a strangely attractive personality.

A REFINED INTELLECT

Of his private career I learned nothing, nor tried to, but I found that he had been out among the Pacific islands for many years, moving from one group to another as the fancy struck him. He made a very fair living, carrying cargoes from place to place on the Bonta. He hated Rabaul with the heartiness that seemed to be the rule with men who lived, or had lived, there; though they all returned to it eventually. He said that the only place he wanted to be was on his schooner. I found him possessed not of culture, but of a naturally refined intellect, and of shrewd wisdom born of profitable experience.

He told me of the finding of the native boy, "Baby," and admitted his fondness for him. And both Watson and I had a great desire in common—to go up the Sepik River.

I admit that I was somewhat flattered at the skipper's attitude toward his merely suffered female passenger. My altogether unpremeditated acquirement of his interest and tolerance struck me as something to be proud of. I well knew that the synthetic personality of all the feminine charms of the ages wouldn't have fluttered a pulse-beat of that odd nomad, and I reflected that I should like to hang on to this rare friendship which seemed to be germinating.

GETS SEASICK

While I was reflecting thus, suddenly the schooner began to rock, and it wouldn't stop rocking. It got worse steadily. We were beginning to round Gazelle Peninsula. I made a brave attempt to appear unconscious of a grown indisposition—there is no sterner pride than that of a person fighting seasickness. The Bonta was rocking relentlessly, and the little deck was shipping water. At a sudden devastating lurch Watson grabbed me just in time to prevent my going headlong into the sea, for I was nearly helpless with a swift and terrible nausea. Seasick . . . on boiled fish! It was ignominious, but I couldn't help it.

The schooner rocked as though demon-possessed. "Never mind," said the skipper, "lots of folks get seasick around the Peninsula." Stepping down into the cabin, he brought me back a drink of brandy. The sea was as placid now as a lake. I rested my head against the cabin and let a blessed trade breeze revive me. Watson, assured that I was on the mend, said good night, advising me to go to bed and to sleep.

Revived somewhat, I turned to the cabin. It was very late. Axel's little Mary was asleep on the unmattressed bunk. By the light of the swinging hurricane lamp I carefully examined my own bunk for the small red cockroaches that I had not yet ceased to fear; but I found none, and decided that they were all under the cover of the pantry cupboard. I tried to extinguish the hurricane lamp, failed, and set it outside. Once in the uncompromisingly hard bunk, I encountered an altogether unexpected and absurd anguish; the schooner vibrated . . . vibrated . . . from its motor, with a constant shivering that set my nose to itching. No matter how I lay, or how much I rubbed my nose, the terrible itching stayed on. I assure you there was nothing amusing about the situation. It was almost morning when I fell asleep from sheer exhaustion.

I think there can be no more beautiful sight in the world than I beheld the next morning. We were idling along the New Ireland coast. Brooding mountains seemed to rise sheer from the water's edge. All about us the water was green, green as jade; and though fathoms deep, it was transparent. We were approaching Kalili Plantation, one of the largest in the territory. This now belongs to the Melanesia Company, and is their number-one plantation, producing an enormous lot of copra each year.

A HEARTY WELCOME

At Kalili there is a natural harbor of dreamy loveliness. From the schooner's side I could see the sunlight dapple the white sand many fathoms below; magnificent coral formations made a vivid submarine museum through transluscent depths. Shoals of little jade and turquoise fish darted in and out among the coral reefs. A pure white sand beach ran down from the plantation's edge. A long bridge extended from the shore to make a convenient anchorage for schooners. On this waited three white men to greet us.

We breezed up to the wharf in style, for from some obscure corner of the boat one of the crew had rescued a new Union Jack, and had run it up with the result that the plantation manager assumed we were the D. O. making an unaccustomed round. It isn't very often that Kalili gets visitors, for New Ireland is sparsely settled. Every now and then, by charter, the old Durour stops by to lift copra; but the three white men stationed there as overseers of several hundred natives are virtual prisoners for the time of their contract.

We were greeted enthusiastically, Watson, Axel and myself. The overseer urged the skipper to spend the day with them. Gloriously untrammeled by a hurrying schedule, he consented. We had brought some mail and supplies from Rabaul—the first for them in weeks—which doubled our welcome.

OVERSEER DISSATISFIED

Round grass huts skirted the shore and dotted the plantation here and there. These were storehouses and native quarters. Unending rows of tall, thriving cocoanut palms, showing healthy dark-green fronds, went on, it seemed, for miles and miles. Piles of cocoanuts lay heaped at orderly intervals. Natives stood about eyeing us with the excitement that a new arrival always inspires. Two of the white men were Australians, one of them young and very good-looking.

The third was a Dutchman, I discovered, who was leaving the islands shortly. He had been waiting two or three weeks for a schooner to come and take him back into the world; he had thought that ours was it, and his eyes had brightened as we tied up to the bridge. He was a tall, gaunt young man, with yellow, lackluster hair. His blue eyes were melancholy; more than melancholy—they looked lonesome, and homesick, and frightened. You could see that he hated this heavenly place, and hated the irresponsible kanakas, hated even the white men who shared his exile. And they, in turn, had given up trying to be cheerful with him. The Hollander had been out here for two years, and was fed up. He disappeared directly after meeting us, and didn't show up again all day.

JUNE 1, 1933. (Section B.)

Approved for Pittsburgh City Schools, Allegheny County Schools and Parish Schools of Pittsburgh Diocese

MONA LISA, CELEBRATED PAINTING BY LEONARDO DA VINCI (1452-1519)

DaVinci, genius of the Italian Renaissance, was like Michelangelo in that he was a painter, sculptor, architect and engineer. In his few writings he predicted discoveries in the natural sciences made later by Galileo, Kepler, Copernicus and recent geologists. (World's History).

APPARATUS FOR LIQUEFACTION OF AIR

The pump compresses air and sends it through water-cooled pipes, where the heat of compression is taken away. The compressed air proceeds through the inner tube of a double pipe, where it cools by expansions, then enters the outer tube with the same effect and returns to the pump for repetition of the procedure. At -220° F. and 575 lbs. pressure per sq. in. (critical temp. and press.) the air will liquify. When the nitrogen is allowed to escape during the process, liquid oxygen is obtained. This is used for explosive cartridges. (Parsons: Science).

OXIDATION (Chemistry)

If iron filings are sprinkled on the wet interior of a jar placed with its open end in a trough of water, after a few days the iron turns rusty (oxidizes), the water rises in the jar (gas volume lessened) and what remains of the air is minus oxygen. (Parsons: Everyday Science).

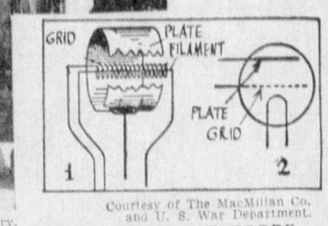
SIMPLE RADIO RECEIVER

The radio waves sent by a transmitter (see Pictorial Education of May 27) are "caught" by an aerial, which is "tuned" by an inductance coil, A, and a variable condenser, T, to the length of the incoming waves. The radio waves are converted by the "detector" D (here a galena or carborundum crystal in contact with the tip of a wire), into direct current impulses which when connected with a telephone receiver produce sound. (Communication). (Parsons: Everday Science).



Courtesy of The MacMillan Co. and U. S. War Department.

THE THREE ELECTRODE-ELECTRON TUBE

Used as detector, also for amplifying currents, this is an evacuated bulb containing a "filament" (wire heated by a low tension local current), a surrounding 'grid' (wire around the filament and connected with the aerial), and a surrounding 'plate' (connected to the telephones). The hot filament throws off electrons which can reach the plate whenever the grid admits them. When the aerial current is in one direction, the grid is positive and helps to draw electrons to the plate; when the aerial impulse is in the other direction, the grid becomes negative and repels electrons. The plate receives electric impulses in one direction only, producing the sound in the telephone receiver. Below is a view of a radio bulb or the three electrode electron tube. (Communication).

THE STATES SPEAK ON PROHIBITION

The Eighteenth Amendment of the U. S. Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating beverages, was added in 1919 and went into effect in 1920. This year Congress passed the Twenty-first Amendment, declaring the Eighteenth repealed if the Twenty-first will be ratified within seven years by conventions in the several states. Thirty-six states out of 48 (three-fourths) must ratify or the repeal amendment will be lost. It is now up to the State Legislatures to provide for the election of delegates to state conventions. About half of these will be held this year. This is the first time the repeal of a part of the Constitution has been attempted and the first time an amendment has been submitted to state conventions instead of to the State Legislatures. This map, drawn by Fletcher White, represents the opinions of the governors concerning the outcome of the public vote. Twenty-three governors predict ratification of the Twenty-first Amendment (state shown white), four predict rejection (black) and 21 refused to give opinions (doubtful, shaded). In eight states the balloting already has favored ratification. (Problems of Democracy).

PROPER FERTILIZER INCREASES YIELD OF FRUIT TREES

The 12 trees on the left each received five pounds of nitrate of soda and acid phosphate and produced 30 barrels of apples. The similar row on the right received no fertilizer and yielded only three barrels. (Burrell: Chemistry). (Foods).

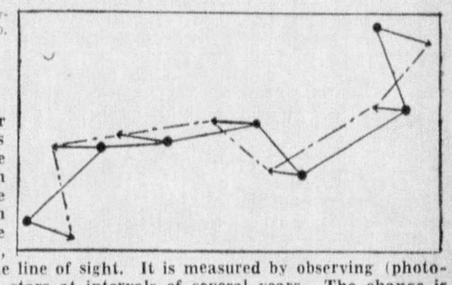
PROPER MOTION OF STARS



The proper motion of stars is across the line of sight in relation to the other stars, in contrast to the radial motion, which is in the line of sight. It is measured by observing (photographing) the stars at intervals of several years. The change is small, amounts to 10",3 a year in case of only one star, the majority showing less than one second a year. This picture shows the proper motion of the Big Dipper (in the Ursa Major). At the end of 100,000 years, the stars will move to the points of the arrows (on the dot and dash lines). (Fath: Astronomy).

Taking Pen in Both Hands

Paul Varady, Los Angeles: Thank you. But it's no time to send an apple dumpling back to the kitchen for more sauce.

McCarthy, Deer Island: Thanks for file of Camp Taylor army newspapers. Don't let any of those bad boys out.

Ed Ensign, Olympia 6501: If there was a stamp in your letter it must have stuck to my vest pocket.

Boston Advertising Club: Actually got sick on that trip. Was nursed by Connolly and Robinson and got sicker.

Baltimore Advertising Club: Glad to have helped a little. Please look for bone collar button under red carpet in Southern Hotel. Our collar insists on tipping our hat.

Mrs. Rambo, Atlanta: Forgot the dogwood, wistaria and wild crab apple blossoms. When you have to look through a New York telephone book every day you naturally must neglect your botany.

Circus Saints and Sinners: Couldn't make that benefit. Too late to reach back now.

Frank Walters, Alaska Building: Always starts an argument. Californians claim that nice weather in Seattle is a southern breeze oversliding third base.

National Press Club: Was in Harrisburg last night. Laid a big egg.

Ira Martin, San Antonio: Thanks for scratching my intellectual shoulder blades. Still going to school.

M. S. Cook, Atoka: Too late again. You must have graduated before letter arrived.

Industry Threatened

The Commerce of the Country May Be Forced Into a Federal Straitjacket by Act of Congress.

American industry has finally awakened to the fact that its most vital operations are in danger of being forced into a federal straitjacket by act of Congress.

This is why hundreds of wage payers, representing every field of industry, are urging drastic revision by the Senate of the measure recently passed by the House under the euphonious title of the "National Industrial Recovery Bill."

The main objection to this measure, as it was put through the House under "gag" rule, was well set forth by Congressman Cox, of Georgia, when it was before the House.

Mr. Cox contrasted the delegation of legislative power granted by this bill with other delegations of power made by Congress at the present session. He said:

"In this bill Congress delegates power which it does not possess—

"The power to regulate the internal affairs of the states—

"The power to control all industry from the point of production to that of distribution—

"The power to regulate hours of labor and to fix wages.

"It is the most gigantic price-fixing scheme ever proposed in the history of any free government."

The theory of this bill, as Congressman Beck, of Pennsylvania, made plain to the House, is that "unless the manufacturer conforms to the wishes of the federal government in regard to the hours of labor, his maximum output, a minimum wage law and other restrictions, he cannot only be proscribed by his own government, but denied the privilege of selling his products in interstate trade."

And the most dangerous and indefensible part about this delegation by Congress of that power that it does not possess is, that no rule is laid down by the legislative branch to guide the agent of the executive branch in the exercise of all these dictatorial powers.

No code of fair competition having the force of law is set forth in this measure. Such a code would have to be created by the executive agent to whom the administration of the measure is entrusted.

The policy of Congress declared by this measure is directly in conflict with the disastrous results upon honest industry which the enactment of the House bill into law would inevitably produce.

Instead of removing "obstructions to the free flow of interstate commerce," the dictatorship provided for by this measure would multiply them.

Instead of encouraging co-operation among trade groups, the arbitrary power granted by the House bill would make co-operative action impossible.

Instead of reducing and relieving unemployment, the body blow to industry which this measure would deal could not but increase unemployment.

This measure as it passed the House is the most flagrant example offered at the present session of the danger incurred when either house of Congress surrenders powers which it has no right to surrender, and in this case powers which it does not even possess.

Fortunately for the freedom and future welfare of private enterprise this measure cannot pass the Senate without adequate examination and debate.

And the more the Senate examines and debates this legislative proposal the more obvious will become the public necessity of eliminating from it those arbitrary provisions which might be acceptable to the Russian people, but will surely prove intolerable to the free people of the United States.

Who Makes the Bombs?

Tracing the Sale of High Explosives Might Furnish a Clue to the Identity of the Bombers.

With contemptuous disregard of the police Pittsburgh racketeers continue to attack their foes with bombs. A Bloomfield man's automobile was blown up yesterday, and he was sent to the hospital, seriously injured. This was the fourth such outrage in less than three weeks.

Who makes the bombs? Where are the explosives obtained? Answers to these questions might furnish a clue to the perpetrators of the attacks.

Probably three out of four Pittsburghers have never seen a bomb, much less handled one, and would not know, without inquiry, where to buy one, or how to make one, or where to obtain the materials for one. Yet the frequency with which bombs are used as weapons by the racketeers suggests that they are easily procured.

Dealers in explosives should be able to throw some light on the subject.

The Sweatshop Inquiry

Public Sentiment Is Strongly in Favor of Protecting Workers From This Form of Oppression.

The Legislative commission to investigate sweatshops in Pennsylvania began work yesterday. A federal inquiry into charges that workers have been oppressed by long hours and starvation wages also got under way.

Public opinion is almost solidly in favor of protecting the workers, especially women and children, from s n conditions as have been exposed recently in clothing factories in the vicinity of Allentown.

Pittsburghers are aroused because they recognize that even though we may have few or no sweatshops here now, if they are tolerated in the eastern part of the state they will be found at the western end also before long.

It is scarcely necessary to add that the proper way to deal with the situation is to enact and enforce corrective legislation.

Savings in Waterways

Small Shippers Should Have an Opportunity to Share In the Benefits of River Improvements.

The Mississippi Valley Association reports in a current publication the case of a Pittsburgh firm which recently saved $3,600 in freight charges on a single shipment by using the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

Pittsburgh businessmen should find in this company's experience an incentive for the extension of waterway improvements—for the improvement of the Allegheny River to Olean, N. Y., and the construction of a canal to connect the Ohio River with Lake Erie.

They also should find in it incentive for demanding that small shippers as well as the large steel, coal and sand companies, shall be given an opportunity to share in the benefits of cheap water transportation.

A man can forgive a woman for any kind of lunacy except being crazy about him.

The fact that a woman trusts a man implicitly never prevents her from being jealous; because it is not the fear that he will make love to another woman that torments her, but the fear that he will WANT to.

The average city man seems to imagine that planting a garden is a sort of cross between playing a round of golf and digging for fishing worms.

If we get repeal and trousers at the same time, will the lady politician swagger through the green baize door, put her foot on the brass rail and tell the bartender to go out and "see what the girls in the back room will have?"

Competition may be the life of a love game to a man—but it takes all the life OUT of love for a woman to discover that she has no monopoly on a man's affections and is only a small shareholder in his kisses.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 1.—Some of the most acceptable poetry of the day is turned out by those who relegate verse to a side line. Margaret Fishback is an advertising copyist for a large department store. Ogden Nash occupies a full-time post with a firm of book publishers.

Samuel Hoffenstein sold himself "down the river" to Hollywood and Martha Wilchinski trumpets for a cinema cathedral. Selma Robinson conducts a publicity bureau and Edna St. Vincent Millay has become active on the radio. In sudden seizures of off hours they twang the lyre.

John Masefield and Edward Arlington Robinson are reputedly the more highly paid of poets. There is a steady market for their wares but they work by fits and starts. At times they spend many weeks in chase of a single fugitive line.

Poetry is not governed by the comfortable stocking-soled codes of prose and that's why materially it is usually unprofitable. The poet's chief fear is stagnation. Every so often the flow of rhyme malevolently stops. And that's why poets grow unkempt, long haired and perhaps soulful!

Columbus Circle's bonfires of illusion burn more brightly than ever. Everywhere at night the sedition-mongers are screaming doubts over civilization. It is great fun for hecklers whose wit crackles liveliest when others are talking. Suspicion at capitalism and religions flares like light from the yard-arms of the banjo torches. Everybody expects something to happen. Nothing does.

Often I try to locate in the Circle the exact location of Faust's that used to glow so red for gourmands of another generation. It was somewhere on the northwestern curve and featured the supremest of puddings listed as "Pudding Marguerite with sauce Mephistopheles," and in reality stale cakes generously covered with what grandma called dip, still a pudding par excellence.

Splendid by day a low-priced continuous vaudeville show geysers the only touch of night life in a roaring Broadway littoral once bounded on the north by Bustanoby's with its sidewalk cafe and lady's bar and on the south by Reisenweber's, where Doraldino, Sophie Tucker and Veronica felt the first flush of fame. To add to the nocturnal droop of a once opulent section, a great city's economic question mark, the bread line, coils there.

Nearly every dunce whose love-dripping letters are read to 12 perfect strangers before being spread across the tabloids, longs to crawl off some place to die. Their ickeackie-oogie would gag a buzzard. The only Romeo who has shown poetry in his soul was Primo Carnera in his penned ardours to a little waitress in a London A. B. C. So wistful, delicate and exquisite were these tendril shoots of love that a wide-awake publisher is bringing them out in a binding of floriated heliotrope and under the hosty-totsy title of "Fireballs in Elysia."

There's always a thrill for blase first nighters when some youthful unknown jerks an audience to its feet, cheering with the final curtain. I've seen it twice—once with Helen Hayes and more recently with Burgess Meredith, a junior Jim Barton type with a tousel of fiery red hair, playing a tough brat in a reform school. What a surge of emotions such a fortunate unknown must feel in the din! In both instances tears glistened.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You admire efficient people—don't you?

You watch them enviously, going so swiftly, surely and strongly through their days; piling up success; winning popular esteem.

"I wish I could be like that!" you say to yourself. "It must be wonderful to be able to accomplish such mountains of work—to do everything as it comes along and finish each job perfectly.

"No wonder such people are happy and proud! Life would seem worth while to me, too, if I could manage the way they do. But I just can't! Why, I never accomplish one-tenth that I plan to do, and each day the mess seems to pile up higher and higher around me.

"And the worst part of it is, I know I work just as hard as efficient people do. Indeed, I'm sure I work harder than lots of them. But in spite of that, I never get anywhere. I guess you just have to be born like that."

And you think how wonderfully your mother used to manage—all the housework, and sewing for six children! Yet she had time for church work and visiting sick neighbors.

Then you look at your littered office or mussed-up kitchen with discouraged eyes. You feel beaten. What's the use of going on like this? You almost wish you could end it all, and at the same time you feel it isn't fair. Those efficient people were born with some mysterious power you lack. Life's easier for them than it is for you. You've never really had the breaks. Your throat aches with self-pity. Anger, too. Anger at a Providence that doesn't play fair.

But you're wrong, stranger. Maybe it's true enough that Providence doesn't play fair—seeing as we largely make our own Fate, and are blighted by our own stupidity and weakness. Yet any man, within the scope of his own job, may be efficient, if he once gets the right slant on efficiency.

BUT THE FIRST THING HE MUST LEARN IS THIS. MODERN EFFICIENCY IS A VERY DIFFERENT PROPOSITION THAN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY ARTICLE.

THE PROGRAM WHICH WAS EFFICIENT FOR YOUR FATHER OR YOUR MOTHER IN 1893 WOULD BE A TOTAL FLOP FOR YOU IN 1933.

For human life, in these last 40 years, has speeded up and tangled up more than in the preceding 400; and unless you can adapt yourself to the new speed and the new complexity, you're done for.

But that doesn't mean "doing everything yourself." Nor does it mean doing everything, or even anything perfectly.

It means picking the thing you can or must do, learning to do that thing smoothly, quickly—doing it with enthusiasm and determination—yet not giving to it any more time or thought or energy than it warrants in the scheme of things.

How do these efficient people, whom you so envy, manage? That's how.

THEY DO ONE OR MANY THINGS WELL.

BUT THEY DO NOT DO THAT ONE THING SO WELL THAT IT WRECKS ALL OTHER VALUES—AND SPOILS THE REST OF THEIR LIVES.

HAVING CHOSEN ONE OR MORE THINGS TO DO WELL, THEY DELIBERATELY CHOOSE TO LEAVE MANY THINGS UNDONE.

FOR A HUMAN BEING CAN MAKE A BUM OF HIMSELF AS SURELY BY TRYING TO DO TOO MANY THINGS AS BY DOING NOTHING AT ALL. AND IT TAKES AS MUCH STRENGTH OF CHARACTER TO WISELY LIMIT YOUR PROGRAM, YOUR INTERESTS AND YOUR AMBITION, AS IT DOES TO WISELY EXPAND IT.

So, if you want to be efficient in 1933—

DON'T BITE OFF MORE THAN YOU CAN CHEW?

CHEW WHAT YOU DO CHEW WELL—

The Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

BOLIVIANS and Paraguayans are slaughtering each other by the thousands in one of the most sanguinary "little wars" of the past half century. They are fighting for ownership and title to a great, wedge-shaped piece of territory called "El Gran Chaco," which remains a mystery even to this day to the geographers and zoologists. The most striking fact in the news of this savage conflict down in the heart of South America, is little Paraguay's heroic stand against the much greater military forces of well-armed Bolivia, and against the airplanes supplied to Bolivia by Patino, the tin king of the world and one of the richest men in the world.

Behind that heroic stand of the Paraguayans is a fascinating human story, the story of "the blond men of the Chaco," the strange sect of Mennonites, who fled to Paraguay from Canada some years ago. They settled in Paraguay and in "El Gran Chaco" to live their lives in accordance with the devout and simple style of Christianity preached by Menno Simons, the sixteenth century Anabaptist evangelist of the Netherlands.

They hated the luxuries and softness of a machine made civilization, and they settled gratefully upon broad acres in El Gran Chaco which were turned over to them by the hospitable Paraguayans. And then the very thing most hated and dreaded, the thing which stood to them for the most terrible of sins against God—war—struck at their new home.

But their gratitude to Paraguay overcame their deep-seated hate for the great plague and curse of mankind. Their gratitude and their love of home—the soil—conquered their religious convictions and their pacifism. To help their friends and hosts, the people of Paraguay, they turned over their horses and their carts for the use of the Paraguayan army defending the Chaco. And knowing every foot of the trackless, unmapped region of jungle and swamp, they volunteered as guides for the Paraguayan columns.

Without the horses and wagons of the blond men of Chaco, these Mennonites, and without such guides, the Paraguayan cause would have beeen hopeless from the start. I think this is one of the finest human stories in the news, this story of the Mennonite colonists repaying their debt of hospitality to the imperilled little nation which received them as men and brothers and gave them land and hope for the future.

EVEN in the storms of change which are blowing over the world, South America, "the continent with a future," produces extremely significant news. In a day when most nations are well-nigh bankrupt and many are defaulting on their debts, Venezuela proudly announces that she hasn't owed a dollar of foreign indebtedness for two years, and has a nice little balance in her treasury of some $4,500,000.

This is the same Venezuela which used to be so casual about her debts to other nations that the Kaiser once threatened to shoot her up with his naval guns, and likely would have done so had not Theodore Roosevelt called Von Holleben, the German ambassador, to the White House and showed him a cablegram already written out to Admiral Dewey.

That cablegram, in effect, commanded the hero of Manila Bay to sail for the coast of Venezuela and smash the German fleet if the Kaiser put on his war paint.

But that was back in the days when a little man named Cipriano Castro, "the Monkey of the Andes," ruled Venezuela as dictator and principally for the good of himself and his list of "close friends." But fashions in dictators change, and the present dictator, while enriching himself, has also brought order out of chaos, and has rigidly followed the good old rule of pay as you go. He is Juan Vicente Gomez, 75 now; a small man, with bristling gray mustache, an eagle beak for a nose, and small, penetrating eyes like flint-arrow points. General and president of Venezuela for 25 years now and without any question one of the 10 ablest men alive.

GEN. GOMEZ, whom this writer interviewed years ago in Caracas, in the days of Cipriano Castro, seized the government when the Monkey of the Andes was driven out in 1908. With no education beyond the three R's for he was driving a mule team in the Andes when he was a boy of 10—he stumbled somehow upon the theory which economists are everlastingly dinning into the ear of dumb statesmen: "No government can live happily beyond its income, any more than an individual is able to do." And Gomez put that theory into practice.

It took some bayonet work and a bit of rifle practice. Politicians who couldn't see the point were stood up against stone walls and converted—permanently. The lesson was driven home.

Venezuela has not borrowed a dollar in 24 years, and has paid off the $300,000,000 which Cipriano Castro repudiated. Gomez has modernized his country of 400,000 square miles and 3,250,000 people.

But the old man, as they call him, has looked out for himself meanwhile. The laborer being worthy of his hire, the Dictator has gathered a fortune of $250,000,000.

He's at heart a farmer, with a vast estancia at Maracay, 75 miles from Caracas, the capital. There he built a beautiful little city for himself, with a zoo and a lake for swans and a motion picture theater where he chuckles over Mickey Mouse and other American films. He is keenly interested, the venerable rascal, in the dark-eyed senoritas, and is said to possess a harem of sorts.

Most of his time is spent away from Caracas, while his lieutenants run his machine, but he has the boys well trained, and a neat way of nipping revolutions in the tender bud.

Dictators come high, but sometimes, as in the case of Mussolini and in the case of Gen. Gomez, they seem to be worth it, if only to abolish the politicians. And this little man with the ferocious mustachios, who believes that governments, like men, should pay as they go, is the most successful dictator since Mr. Bonaparte of Corsica. Inch for inch and ounce for ounce, he's the champion of his class, little Juan Vincente Gomez, of Venezuela.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are persons who have a bad influence on you.

You are always tempted to do something which often brings regrets, when you are with this person, or persons.

You resolve to avoid those responsible for these evil influences.

But when they come to you with a proposal you find yourself too weak to resist and you fall.

You spend too much money, stay out too late at night and engage in certain practices in company with these persons which are a discredit to you and your training.

You always feel ashamed of yourself, mean for days afterward and yet you have not the strength of character to refuse an invitation.

The persons who lead you around do not admire you, don't even respect you, but they get satisfaction in controlling you.

Are you willing to be so controlled?

The more you object but finally succumb to their desires, the more gratification these baleful influences, personified, get out of your plight.

How long will you permit yourself to be a puppet?

When will you become master of yourself?
